Memory of '21

O Memory, thou golden key
To the golden barred door,
That safely guards our sacred hoards:
The thoughts of days of yore:
In brightest hues that thou canst fuse
Give us what thou dost hold—
The rarest and the fairest from Behind thy doors of gold!

Dedication

To

James Sprunt

Gentleman, Patriot, Friend of Youth in appreciation of the Strength and Sweetness of a Noble Life

We respectfully and affectionately dedicate this book

James Sprunt

JAMES SPRUNT, of Wilmington and Orton, Doctor of Laws of the University, is a native of Glasgow, Scotland. He came to Wilmington at the age of six years and became so thoroughly imbued with the spirit and temper of the Lower Cape Fear that no native is more completely racy of that soil so fertile in the production and nurture of men—high-toned gentlemen, men of decisions, men of affairs.

He received his early education in Glasgow, Kenansville, and Wilmington, the Civil War breaking out just in time to interrupt his studies and destroy his plan of entering the University. Instead, like thousands of Southern boys of his age, it forced him to begin the process of self-education, chiefly in the grim realities of war.

Though still a youth, he was an officer of a blockade-runner, when upon the success of blockade-running depended the continued existence of the Confederacy. Captured, he saw the inside of a Northern prison, but escaping its horrors through cool daring, he turned once more to his hazardous but fascinating occupation. The war soon ended, however, and he returned home to enter a business career which was to prove notable in the annals of the State. From the proceeds of a private venture through the blockade, he formed, with his father, the cotton exporting firm of Alexander Sprunt and Sons, and upon his father's death some years later he became the senior and directing partner. By this time the venture had already, in spite of many obstacles, proved a success, and under his wise and skillful management it thrived and prospered until it finally became the greatest cotton exporting firm in the world (with more than fifty direct agencies in foreign countries), and made of Wilmington one of the leading cotton ports of the United States.

During this period Mr. Sprunt visited seventeen foreign countries, not only establishing invaluable business connections, storing up impressions, gaining knowledge, and making acquaintances, which were later to prove immensely important in a business way, but also developing a wide range of intellectual interests which have entered largely into the making of the mature man. He has seen, in the process of making, much of the history of the past sixty years, and his recollections, if recorded, would read like a romance.

In the creative part he has played in the rebuilding of the commonwealth, in his hospitable and delightful home with his family and friends, in all the varied phases of social and religious life in his community, in the wide intellectual environment which he has moulded for himself—in all his relations—his has been, in the largest sense of the term, a full life.

Mr. Sprunt has held many positions of trust and honor. Succeeding his father in the post, he was for many years British vice-consul, and, for a time also the Imperial German vice-consul, in Wilmington, winning high commendation from both governments for his valuable services. He has been President of the Produce Exchange, President of the Seaman's Friendly Society, President of the Y. M. C. A.,

and Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Navigation and Pilotage. He has also been President of the State Literary and Historical Association and the North Carolina Folk Lore Society. Deeply interested in education, he was for years on the school board of Wilmington, and has been since 1899 a trustee of the University.

In spite of the pressure of these many activities, Mr. Sprunt has found time for wide reading and study and has made literary contributions of value to the State. His publications, most of them in relation to the history of the Lower Cape Fear, are numerous, the best known being his books, "Chronicles of the Cape Fear," and "Derelicts." In recognition of the excellence of his historical work, the mother chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa Society at the College of William and Mary, in 1915 elected him to membership.

North Carolina knows him as one of its foremost captains of industry and deservedly values him highly for the great service he has rendered the State in that capacity. But North Carolina knows him in other phases and values him in these even more highly. As a public-spirited citizen, possessed of a high sense of responsibility, he has always stood for the things which would best tend toward the permanent upbuilding of community and commonwealth. Deeply and sincerely philanthropic, he has regarded his wealth as a public trust and has used it with unsparing generosity in relieving distress, in giving equality of opportunity to youth, and in advancing the cause of the Kingdom of God. Thoroughly loyal to the land of his adoption, he has rendered it high service in devoting time, money, ability, and labor to the preservation of her history, and as the chronicler of the Lower Cape Fear he has won deserved reputation as a writer and investigator. Throughout the State he is held in esteem and honor.

The University claims him in a still closer way as her own. A son by adoption, he is as loyal as any alumnus who lived his four years on this old campus, and delights to hold himself a Carolina man. As a member of the Board of Trustees he has been one of the most interested of her supporters. Through his generosity the James Sprunt Historical Publications were founded. His devoted wife was instrumental in the establishment of the Murchison Scholarships, and in her beloved memory he has only this year presented to the University, the community, and the State a noble church edifice—the Sprunt Memorial Presbyterian Church.

It is impossible to calculate in any set way the vast possibilities for good of this splendid gift, but all, nevertheless, recognize them in deep appreciation and gratitude. He has by it and his other benefactions, by his interest and affection, definitely impressed himself into University history, for countless generations of Carolina men and women will know him as one of the University's immortals.

Foreword

Our undergraduate days draw to a close and we are soon to go forth to the life and professions to which we have so long aspired. Alma Mater has sought to prepare us well for those things which we have yet to learn in the great school of experience. May we ever be bound together in the purposes of a high and common cause that we, by virtue of our opportunities, may find present joy in the service of the world in these disordered times. May the 1921 Yackety Yack find its justification in bringing to mind the bitter-sweet memories of glorious associations and privileges which all Carolina men enjoy.

Carolina Alumni

THE men who face us on the following pages are there not so much from the students' choice of them as pre-eminent among the University alumni but as representative of the University and the State. The outlook of their faces largely tells why they are there. Their interests and activities bespeak the interests and activities of North Carolina. Murphy, Stephens, Hoey, Scales, Roberson, Connor, Lewis, Parker, Thompson, Shuford, Long, Cameron, Clarke, Winston, Mangum, Graves, Everett, McNider, Wilson, Manning and Henderson represent, in fact are, a cross section of the vigor and variety of North Carolina leadership in agriculture, manufacturing, commerce, law, medicine, politics, literature, education, religion, and public service. They drank from the old well and then went out into the State carrying the waters of life. They sought for the truth, interpreted the truth, and in their various ways became bearers of the truth to the people.

The three alumni professors in the group exemplify the University idea of the truth reaching out in service. Dr. McNider seeks the truth in laborious days and nights over test-tubes and microscope, and a bit of new truth is revealed in relation to nephritis and metabolism. Dr. Henderson seizes the truth in events, thoughts, and movements, and interprets it, set to the living page. Dr. Wilson takes the truth found and interpreted and sets it free to go into its career of service among the people. The sons of the University in the State, as illustrated in the lives of the men here pictured, catch up the truth as found, and extend, add to it, re-interpret it, and make it a part of the life of the people. They are the University alive and at work for North Carolina.

"I have an ideal for the University.
My desire would have it a place
Where there is always a breath of Freedom in the air; where the life
And teachings of Jesus Christ furnish Forth the ideal of right and true man-
Hood; where all classes and conditions
And beliefs are welcome and men may Rise in earnest striving by the might
Of merit; where wealth is no prejudice
And poverty no shame, where honorable
Labor, even labor of the hands, is Glorified by high purpose and strenuous
Desire for the clearer air and the Larger view; where there is a will to Serve all the high ends of a state strug-
Gling up out of ignorance into general
Power, where men are trained to observe
Closely, to imagine vividly, to reason
Accurately, and to have about them
Some humility and some toleration;
Where finally, truth, shining patiently
Like a star, bids us advance, and we Will not turn aside."

History of the Class of 1921

YESTERDAY afternoon I took a walk through Battle Park, past Judge Brockwell's, and on up the path through the pines to the old Dromgouhle rock. Here I paused for a moment and recalled the tragic legend associated with the old gray stone, and then following the rocky trail on the right down to the cairn, started several years ago by Dr. Battle, I climbed up on top of it and saw spread out before me the old familiar yet ever appealing panorama of Piney Prospect. As I stood watching the shadows lengthen in the valley below until they had almost reached the little farmhouse down there, memories, at first vague and indistinct, like some sweet dream of childhood, and then stronger and more vivid with each moment's reflection, surged upon me and carried me back into the past—only four years, it is true; but four years of such intensity and soul-stirring effort that they might have been spread over a half century of ordinary time.

And then I thought of President Chase's talk to us that night just before Christmas of our Senior year when we were holding our class smoker in the Inn.

"Your class," he said, "is the connecting link between the old University and the new."

Never before had I realized to such an extent the absolute truth in Dr. Chase's statement that night, and with this fuller realization there came to me a stronger love for this class and a greater pride in her for what she has accomplished while on the "Hill." Entering the University three hundred and sixty strong—the old University—we have gone through the greatest change in the history of the institution, and have finished with almost half that number, a percentage that would have been very good under entirely favorable circumstances.

Yet it is not in the number of students that under the most trying conditions have been able to finish with the class that we find cause for the deepest satisfaction. It is, rather, in the fact that through our whole stay here we have been a united class. We very early began to get together, and each succeeding year has strengthened the ties that join us in common brotherhood—that of the Carolina man and the '21 man. For a year we sat in chapel and listened to the counsels of President Graham, Dean Stacy, and our beloved "Old Pres" Battle, and we shall always love the memory of these three and shall never forget what a privilege we enjoyed in having them with us that first year.

There was another man, too, whom we all loved. And as I thought of Captain Allen I turned from the path and went through the woods to the trenches over there above "Judge's" house. There they were—the main line trenches, the communication lines, machine gun nests with sand bags piled around them, the two dugouts, the listening posts—as complete as the Hindenburg line the day before the thirtieth division hit it. And over in front were barbed wire entanglements. It was almost night now, and looking out there I saw slipping under the wire a dark form, and then another, and another, and—I was almost startled out of my wits at C. Holding's bellowing command "Charge! Company B!" And here they came, boiling out of the trenches to meet G. Holding's "enemy" fellows of Company A.

Of course I had been day-dreaming, and as the illusion vanished I saw the trenches as they really were—demolished, washed out, the dugouts fallen in, the barbed wire gone, here a sign, almost down and ludicrous looking, announcing that this particular sector is "Ypres," and another lying over there on the ground marked "Verdun." But I could not forget Captain "J. Stuart," nor the endless drilling, and the field work, and the lectures, and all the stuff that goes with the preparation for war. On the way back to the campus I passed the cemetery, where it is said, strange, ghostlike figures are accustomed to appear at certain times in the fall and spring, wandering about among the tombstones to the accompaniment of many vociferously wielded paddles.

GRANT
Best Business Man

Reaching the point where the path turns off to the left of the Raleigh Road, I ducked under the strand of wire there, and found myself at the east end of Emerson Field—the identical place where Alf Scales, class president during our Freshman year, who died a year later in the Service, had made many a thirty-yard run, and where "Runt" Lowe on Thanksgiving Day, 1919, fell across the goal for a touchdown that added another victory against Virginia. It was on this field, also, that "Lefty" Wilson won the world's record for the least number of pitched balls in a game in the 1920 game with Trinity.

On my way back to South I ran rapidly over three succeeding years. During the spring of our Freshman year many of the fellows began dropping out to enlist in the Service: Captain Allen sent some to Oglethorpe, and then summer came and quite a number of us went to Plattsburg. We were scattered everywhere. When school opened and ushered in the nightmare of the S. A. T. C., the old "Carolina Spirit" that we had learned to cherish the year before was "nil." Everything was demoralized and 2nd lieutenants from Maine and Georgia were sent to plague us. Dr. Graham fell a victim to the heavy responsibilities of Regional Director of the S. A. T. C., and died during the fall.

KERR
Most Dignified Biggest Politician

Upon our return after Christmas, from the regime of the S. A. T. C., overseas, training camps, and everywhere, we were astonished and delighted to find that Carolina was not completely dead in spirit, and at once we set out to build up with the little life that remained a strong and vigorous vitality. Studies were resumed and student activities came in for their place in normal University life.

BOBBITT
Best Debater—Best Orator

Baseball, basketball, and track started off with renewed life, and the intercollegiate triangular debates were continued. Three out of the four Carolina men—Bobbitt, Boyd, and Patterson—represented '21. Under the leadership of Bailey Liipfert, the class had made another start and was about to recover from the interruption incident to the war, when the death of Dean Stacy, followed in a few weeks by that of Dr. Battle, cast a gloom over the whole campus.

BELL
Ugliest

The next year marks the most important period in the history of the class; in fact, one of the turning points in the whole course of the University. With John Kerr at the helm we plunged into the sea of campus problems, and under his enthusiastic guidance a movement was inaugurated that had for its purpose the abolishment of a condition that up to that time had been a menacing one. During the previous history of Carolina, the fraternity question had been a very live one. There was a noticeable aloofness between the fraternity man and the non-fraternity man. The situation was not serious, except in the fact that it might have tended to threaten the unity of the student body, especially at the time of the University's continued growth and ever-increasing tendency to decentralize into the various schools. Our class had always been very open and frank in its relations, both with other groups and among ourselves, and realizing that we owed it to Carolina to perpetuate this condition among the classes that followed us, we at once began planning a remedy for the existing conditions. The whole question was brought out into the open and frankly discussed by the class, and to '21 and John Kerr as leader, the campus owes to a great extent the present excellent feeling and complete understanding and sympathy between the two groups. There is no delineation. A man is judged by the standard of the Carolina man.

TAYLOR
Wittiest

Carolina's wonderful success in the various intercollegiate contests was another characteristic of the Junior year. The State Championship was won in football, baseball, and track; Johns Hopkins and Virginia were defeated in debating—Grant, Kerr, and Taylor represented '21—and Virginia and North Carolina State fell before the Blue and White football team; Hodgin won the National Oratorical Contest; and, in brief, the year was a successful one in almost every field. At commencement, eighteen men from the Class of 1921—the highest number ever elected from any class at Carolina—were initiated into Phi Beta Kappa—Cook, president; Beers, secretary; Ashby, Berryhill, Blythe, Bobbitt, Boyd, Miss Cobb, Davis, Edmundson, Gardner, Hudson, Patterson, Sheppard, Shore, Stevens, Tucker, Miss Venable, and Wilson were the winners of the gold key.

OGBURN
Most Original

And as I thought of Class Day and how John Washburn, the president of the graduating class, had turned over to us the campus with the admonition to transmit it as good and even better than it was when we received it. And when Berryhill had given our pledge and had accepted it in the name of the Class of 1921 we marched away from Old Davie Poplar as the masters and guardians of the "Hill."

ROBBINS
Laziest

The last year passed by more swiftly than any of the others. We accomplished a great deal, however. Foreseeing that it would not be long before our days at Carolina would be over, we set to work to make more vital our class unity and class fellowship. Smokers were held once a month—some of them in the various fraternity halls, and at other campus centers—and the class got to know itself as a big family, each member loving the other brothers and all honoring and esteeming one great mother that we call Carolina. We have achieved well on the campus and it is our determination to keep up the record that we are now living.

This morning I was aroused through the combined efforts of a very insistent alarm clock and an unidentified object on the campus. Going to the window, I saw that the offending noisemaker was the University dray Ford, manned by two or three of Mr. Pickard's hands and under full steam. From its peculiar antics and the high quality jazz that was issuing from it I judged that it was either mighty hoarse or else suffering from auto-intoxication.

At Gooch's I gulped down a hasty breakfast, and then grabbing "Bull's" car, beat it for Carboro. At the window I got a ticket, and having checked my trunk, I swung on the "dinkey," just in time to slump into a seat before Captain Smith shouted "Board! Get aboard!" Getting up courage and steam, the pride of the Southern moved slowly off. The station was passed and one by one the piles of oak crossties were left behind. Crossing the aisle to get out of the sunlight, I took out my Cosmopolitan and settled down comfortably to read.

I was an alumnus of the University of North Carolina.

HE is one of these remarkable animals, that know how to reconcile a Phi Beta Kappa key to an N. C., being one of the cohorts of Dr. Lawson in the gym, as well as a proselyte of Joe Cook's tribe. Moreover, this one is what may be termed a mnemonic bull; the so-and-so's memory course in seven spasms is the reason. His friend and follower, Bingham Owens, styles him as a master of the seven spasms, and Bingham himself is not to be laughed at. "Name fifteen objects and I'll name them over from memory," then Ashby will give 'em to you backwards," says Bingham, and away they go. Ah Memory, what a jewel you are!

WE can't pass by "Puss" without thinking of the time when, as he was helping survey some county road, he neared a rustic domicile. The honest granger perceived this proximity of the redoubtable Sheldon C., and called to his naïve female offspring to gather up all the valuables in sight and seek the inmost walls of the domestic edifice. Now what significance might be attached to this interesting behavior of the simple folk, we can't presume to dictate. Sheldon C. admits that he might have been a bit soiled of physiognomy at the time. Still we must always recall this when we see him sail by all dressed up like a page from the Home Library edition of Hart, Schaffner & Marx

NOW "Gorilla" Bell won out in the great beauty-nix classics, but his victory was due as much to F. R. Bacon's campaign manager, as to the merits "Gorilla" displayed in the contest. This boy is known to work some sort of charm on the hearts of fair damsels, and is also believed to receive pink envelopes at frequent periods, but he must always bear in mind that there are some blind elements in this world, and among them are Mammoth Cave fish, ordinary dead Mexicans, and Love—these three—and the greatest of these is Love.

"J. E." is among those who early fell for the line of J. Booker, and he is still flat on his back and gasping. Johnny does them that way, sometimes. Banzett has the further distinction of being in the crowd which initiated "Old Carr" Barn in the palmy Freshman days, when we had to rise and report by the bugle and when verdancy was in bloom. It is a question to be settled by the Class Historian whether he ever fell a victim to the roughhouses given in Carr 10 under the auspices of C. P. Powell. But we remember him over there and he is still the quiet, well-meaning lad, of course, only as much so as Johnny has let him remain.

WE shall always picture "C. D." with his W Phi Beta Kappa key, sitting in the library, studying industriously, trying to be as scholarly as one Joe Cook will let him. Becoming restive of the cloisters, he broke into the forensic world just as the denouement was starting and became an intercollegiate debater. We present herewith a profound student of theology, philosophy, literature, politics, and, incidentally, of medicine. Without doubt there is brewing somewhere in him a great deal that is worth while.

"A THING of beauty is a joy forever." Thus do we hail thee, O, unlaurelled Apollo; thus do we commemorate thy mighty deeds while ye brake bread in this city of dreams—dreams of fair women, dreams of feasts of football, dreams of intermingled hours of ease. But it is still a distinction to be the best in your line, even though the line be homeliness. Yet it is hard to reconcile the victory to open politics when it is known that H. C. Heffner F. R. Bacon, and J. T. Penny were heard in the race. We point to him with pride as the worthy successor to the honors of Heartt Bryant, and we believe that he would make a creditable race for all-American honors. Yea, "Gorilla" has the goods.

IMAGINE a tortoise that refused to race with the somnolently inclined hare—imagine then the hare that was too ardent a lover of ease to even listen to the tortoise's refusal of a race, put your mental picture to sleep and what you then see will be a faded likeness of "Gette." Now the interesting thing about it all is this: He made Phi Beta Kappa, distinguished himself in many literary ways, and actively participated in class athletics. How did he do it with all that inertia to overcome? Perhaps he was told to make Phi Beta Kappa and the rest just wouldn't go to the trouble to frame a decent excuse.

IN those realms of philosophical speculation, "C. T." shines as Sirius in the night. This question was expounded to the club: "If your mother were to die, and a man of the community were to take the last long sleep, leaving a daughter: after which a courtship were to grow into marriage between you and the surviving mother of the aforesaid daughter, then your father were to marry the daughter, and from each union a son become the product, in the course of time, in what relation would you stand to the family?" IT is said that Pythagoras once, upon being asked of what he was master, replied: "I am a philosopher." If there is anything that "B. C." likes better than philosophy, it is discussing ethics.

He spent some time during the war, in the guise of a gob, rising from an insignificant hash-slinger to the dignity of ensign—whatever that process may be. Without any great effort of memory, we can see him, walking along cool paths, 'neath the lisping leaves, among groves, beside magnificent flowerbeds, and always with that somber mien, which so well marked him for what he represents, keeping watch by his side.

"DICK" is another of those Democrats who came up from South Carolina in more or less of a missionary spirit, hearing that we have something like ten Republicans in the House. He is noted for saying nothing upon every occasion upon which he has nothing to say. We have been unable to decide just what he does best, but we have learned that he is a good student of literature, a good writer, has a pleasant sense of humor, and we believe that he is a creditable advertising man, for he has been here four years, during which time a dozen men have joined our camp from within a small radius of his dugout in the sister State. If he has had nothing to do with this, it is at least pleasingly coincidental.

HERE is the student of them all: The exalted Nekus Hekus of the sanctorum of Phi Beta Kappa, "Joe" was as much surprised to see that two on his report—the only two he got during the whole four years' war—as Adam was when he first roused from the arms of Morpheus to behold the figure of Eve. We understand that the Twin-City gareon kept that prof so blind in the sequel courses that it made Homer look like Sherlock Holmes. You have heard of that Southern drawl, well, Henry is an ardent disciple of this method of enunciation and it gets results, too. If you want to see him in his native element, catch him in a "bull session" or at the gym during the dances. And he gets along in literature, too; he even took the famed Bacon course, and came into Comp' Lit. And it is this that makes it hard to reconcile his eternal clinging to Carr Barn: he could no more shake the "Barns" than could Dr. Jekyll shake Mr. Hyde. The only conceivable explanation is probably in this: that he never says "quit." If other instances must be had of his pertinacity, we must needs only mention that mustachio he carried around so long. Some Freshmen asked him one day if it wasn't growing on him. "JESS" hails from the city of Derms. His long suit is his dress suit; his short one is politics. When the argument comes down to basketball, Jesse Harper has the points.

On the score of studies, he qualifies for having helped J. Booker run English 61. For the sake of irony, we will say that he chews tobacco, 'cause he doesn't. "The Margrave" has a girl over in Raleigh "obtaining a schooling." This item is about the extent of his likes; but he has some very strong dislikes, among which is politics. He claims politics is indeed execrable. There is but one instance of his ever falling to its use, and that instance, he claims, is totally excusable; it is this: "Gorilla" Bell was elected the ugliest man in the class. "DO it with electricity" is his motto. He is another one of the quiet birds of the campus, but along with this quietness he carries a capacity for work. Of course, now and then he takes a night off, and when he does—well, you probably know the result. But on the whole he sticks to his work like a cootie to an army shirt. But the buildings are still standing. "Bill," old boy, and Commencement is scheduled for the middle of June, so arise on that happy day and come down and join your class.

"EACH of us is an omnibus on which all of our ancestors ride." Try something like that on Worth and watch him grin. He'll know what you are talking about, for his exposure to geology—pronounced very rapidly—was of something like four years' duration. Furthermore, he's a geology bull, that boy; he can tell you the hardness of icicles. Although he still claims that he is where he is, largely because he's what he is, he's got it down to a fairly fine point. Some may think that Worth doesn't put out much work. They are wrong, when it comes to work he's a cascarter. May he and Roy Francis forever dwell peacefully together on this page.

Sprinkle, sprinkle, little bull, how I marvel at your pull;
In this world of men so high, you the test of fact defy.
Give me rope of any kind, and I'll fashion me
a line,
Then I'll lasso all the cattle that a trusty line can baffle.
When the test of work shall come, I will take a little drum.
And stand before the march of time, brandishing my line sublime.

WE all were Freshmen, therefore, so was Howard, but you would never think it to see him execute the office of "Dean of Co-eds." With his cherubic smile and his unusually controllable golden locks, he handles his incumbency gracefully. You would hardly think that he is the same bird that is such a bundle of fury in a football uniform, called by the crowd "Fats." He is called the "Deacon" on various occasions.

He is such a model fellow and does his work so above reproach, that it is difficult to find anything to say about him, since he likes not the soft words, and we like not to hand them out.

WADE is a diminutive particle of humanity, but with all that he made Phi Beta Kappa, and not Phi Beta Kappa only, but the tennis team. But you can't keep a squirrel on the ground in timber country, and Wade can grin just like a squirrel.

It might be said that Wade can dance, and let the statement stand or fall on whether or not there were more credence than quibble in the reader's make up; but to insure belief, let it be known that he learned to pirouette and glide during the summer as head waiter of the Wardman Park Inn, somewhere in D. DAN" was one of the self-help students, and he certainly helped himself. He is a worthy successor of Nat Gooding. His Tar Heel is a revelation to the campus; it not only appears twice a week, but makes port on time; and, then, it is a real publication.

OUR Lee Overman is a namesake; and we think he is a good one, whatever the qualifications be. There is a certain young person living at Danville who draws most of his literary efforts since he finished Freshman English; probably it is not in order to wonder who or what will draw his mathematical outbursts now that he has relegated Freshman math to the credit side of his account with T. J. W., Jr. He majored, as we all know, in Freshman math, liked it so well that he took it for four years. He is a worshipper of the god Terpsichore; a leader of the "light, fantastic toe" carnivals.

GRIMM is as much of Union County as the Democrats are of South Carolina, which is one way of expressing absolute, indisputable, undivided totality. He wears glasses, and you know the kind of man that wears 'em. He's studious, he's quiet, he's unpresumptuous, he's imperturbable, he's sound to the core, and frank. "In union there is strength."

WHY, oh why, is it that Guard has such an insatiable desire to spend his time and kale in Norfolk? And he has plenty of kale at hand for these frequent trips, too; we are not unmindful of that. Probably he has his reasons, though, and far be it from us to impute that reasons cannot be had. It is our artless surmise, however, that the natives of Norfolk are of a temperament that has no wholesome regard for the nuisance commonly styled work. If this be true, we see why Guard spends so much time and kale there.

WILLIAM has been trying to break in a pipe ever since he came to these ivied walls of learning back in the day of 1917, when he achieved a one on Mr. Rankin's math classes and Captain Allen "held a fretful realm in awe." He is illustrious for having spent a dateless summer school session on this very "Hill." Maybe the folks who make ones on Freshman math don't ever recover.

And say, did you ever hear "Bill" play a mandolin? Well, the ways in which that boy can twist, pucker, and otherwise contort those lips of his, would make Roger Ogburn look like a stone image, almost, but be it said of Roger, not quite. And—"Bill" has carried the traditions of Charlotte on and on.

HOWARD, hailing from Wilmington, became heathen-weary of studying the ministry at Wake Forest last year, and so he came over to herd with the "goats" awhile. Whether or not he came to convert the "heathen" of this fair clime, we are unable to say; but he certainly has succeeded in conquering wherever he has turned his hand. He was a veritable bulwark of strength on the Varsity eleven, a star guard on the basketball team, and through his politeness and never-failing courtesy, he has captured the hearts of his fellow-toilers in the race for the diploma.

THERE are some things "Boots" refuses not, neither does he study (he has almost a polo-team of whiskers; we understand that it requires but a few for this). It is a generally accepted fact that he was disappointed in Love (not J. Wilbert, however) some time in his youth, for which he is not insufferably off the soft stuff. He has been accused of poetry by R. O. Smith, and Smith is an honorable man. Moreover, it is said that he has never written to a girl in his life. How multifarious are his idiosyncrasies! He himself asked that this be said, too: "He studies awfully hard," to which Wilbert Love amended: "Just before exams." It is alleged that "Boots" understands this password: "Eddie."

WELL, he came over here three years ago, and finding that board was high, books higher, and time dear, decided that four years was too much chronological tax for a diploma, so he has extracted one in three. TUBBY was almost an officer once. Learning to "cuss" as 1st Sergeant of the S. A. T. "IKE" entered school as an innocent member of the Class of '20, but the war got him for a while, and then Uncle Sam dumped him on us. (This is just a fling at him to even it up for those snowballs he used to toss at us ever so gently.) We are glad to have him, and we expect that he will make Wall Street hum one of these days. He already has a very creditable collection of portraits of mademoiselles, and the scented envelopes arriving in each mail indicate that he will choose one of them to be the madam. But "Ike" does not wish to be quoted as saying that love is a primrose affair. And, oh yes! He is known to have been cedar birded out of a dollar his Senior year, after avowing to the perpetrator that he was not a cedar bird.

EDWIN will also answer to the appellation of "Mike." He did some time at Oak Ridge Institute preparatory to coming to seek the "flaming torch" held high in the shadows of old Davie Poplar, and his serene, even if a bit severe, face would seem to attest to his success on his quest. He is somewhat "salty," according to the use of the term by those who follow the mast to rough and foreign ports, for he has seen the waves break from the plowing prow and in the adventurous waters of the Spanish Main. When he came to us four years ago, along with him came "Hooley" Stack, which youth roamed with him when he was seeing the Southern Seas. But he is apparently satisfied now to seek his Romance "around the corner"—a place where it is most often lurking.

FRANK is a seeker in the field of medicine; and that fact probably throws light on the following bit of lore. As he was coming off a lecture on evolution, he was once asked, "Did you get all that line, Frank?" Frank replied: "Well, no; I followed him until he implied that I was related to a cricket, but then he left me." This is not an allegory; it is just a local legend unadorned. "JUNE" comes from "The Land of the Sky," and as far as appearances go, is true to the type; for to look at him as he walks thoughtfully along some mall, you would think he never says a word to anyone, but what we are talking about is this: he's got an awful line when he gets strung out—it is a veritable lasso—perhaps he gets his sober mien honestly, as his father is a bishop.

He spent some time at Plattsburg during the argument with William der Gruff. Then he came back down to the "Hill" and did some one-two-three-four, after which he was to go somewhere in Georgia. While awaiting orders to entrain, an order came telling them "As you were"—the Heinies had signed another scrap of paper. Since then "June" has applied himself to the studious pursuit of a scrap of sheepskin.

RUFUS missed one fourth of his college career, entering the University as a lucky Soph after a year at Wake Forest. Funny part of the story is that despite his good start in the other direction, he has turned out to be one of the necessary accessories when the dances are "tripped," "shimmied," or "toddled," as the case might be. And when he bandolines his hair, powders his beaming face, and otherwise prepares for these dances, he makes a perfect mark for Cupid's arrows. We would not leave the impression that Rufus is just "social" and nothing else, because that is a misapprehension. He has, by diligent application to his work, succeeded in overcoming the effects of the "naval land" forces during the S. A. T. C., and is graduating in the insurance business--and possibly matrimony.

In Memoriam

A. S. M. KENNEY

1898-1920

AUGUSTUS Summerfield Merrimon Kenney was born in Raleigh, N. C., on December 20, 1898. He was the only child of John B. and Margaret Merrimon Kenney. His early childhood days were spent in Raleigh, and after the death of his father he and his mother moved to Salisbury, N. C., where they made their home with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory.

Graduating from the Salisbury High School, he spent a year at Horner's School in Charlotte and entered the University in the spring of 1918, being a member of the Class of 1921. At the conclusion of his third year in Chapel Hill, he accepted a position with the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, and it was while in the employ of this company that he contracted the illness that resulted in his death at the University Infirmary, on November 2, 1920.

While at the University he took part in numerous activities. He was a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity, the Coop, the Order of the Minotaur, the Invisible Order of Stygians, Assistant Cheerleader, Vice-President of the School of Commerce and leader of several dances.

To know Merrimon Kenney was to love him. He made friends wherever he went, and he went everywhere. His carefree, jovial disposition made him a great favorite and his unusual personality always made a lasting impression. His originality, his humorous ingenuity, added to any occasion and his happy, cheerful smile was of the kind that makes the world a better place to live in. Sympathetic in times of sorrow, cheery in times of depression, hilarious in times of merriment, he blended his mood to fit any occasion, and his three years on the campus added much to the pleasure of those with whom he came into contact.

"WE point with pride" to another one of our red-headed members. He is doubtless better remembered by many as the "deported Red." We never knew him to commit a rash act, unless it was in connection with snowballing the Freshmen, and everybody likes the "doc" things. He always has the same smile for everybody, and it is always returned. You couldn't help it if you tried. "Red" was chairman of our Junior Class Executive Committee and was one of those who were responsible for the fine spirit of class unity and campus unity that was initiated during that year.

LLORENS was not onto the ways of the world when he came to us four years ago; he got a room in Carr "Barn". He has always been sweet on the ladies; he had one back then, and had her so completely that she let him have her dear little canary bird to sing to him of her as he labored over biology; all of which was very well until the inevitable cat came on the stage, then the cat lost all nine of his lives in the settlement. Llorens was imported from balmy and palmy Cuba, where the signoritas smile at one provokingly from behind green lattice, where the cool shade of a palmctto and a breeze-catching hammock is a god's share.

"LET 'em try to come through. I'll fix 'em." A big, clumsy-looking fellow on the class football field appeared to be able to back up his statement. And when it came to charging—the Sophs crumbled. Now there is one thing about these folks that collect a big assortment of nicknames: When you find a bird who dangles five from his belt, you are safe in an even bet that he's been a rounder.

THOMAS MORTIMER McKNIGHT
Mooresville, N. C.

TOM' is convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that he is an excellent dancer; he worships at the shrine of Terpsichore diurnally as well as nocturnally. When he became a Senior, he developed a prodigious social penchant. Everyone knows he is red-headed, therefore there is no need of mentioning that; hence, the name "Red," but he says that he cannot understand why people call him "Red" just because his hair is a little pink. Bad as we hate to tell it, "Tom" has a collection of hair oils, tonics, and cosmetics that would gladden the heart of Cleopatra if it did not poison it with envy. This is hard to reconcile with the fact that he is a lover of baseball; he catches when it is not too hot, but the sun makes life pretty tough for "Tom." A certain prof used to call him "Meester Mick-Night." Oh, it was a treat to hear it!

THE most outstanding feature of Noe is his height; his most cherished diversion is civil engineering; his worst habit has always been "Car Barns." Among his distinctive qualities is one most unusual in these domains. During the rages of the S. A. T. C., he was wont to rise at four A. M., dress and lonesomely wait the clarion notes of reveille. You're a better man than I am, "Kussen Ken."

Noe presents one of those most interesting (in his age) studies in humanity typified by the Sphinx of far-off Egypt; he is given little to words. If we are literalist, we but need hearken to the old adage, "Silence is golden," to convince ourselves that in him we have a second Rockefellow.

TRAVEL back in mind to the days when C. J. Hardce and Bob Devereux kept house in Old East 25, the days when Cicero was a Freshman. "Cy," as C. J. left and "Cy" grew out from under the watchful eye of Bob, so next we see him pulling the troubadour act at Duke's in Durham, with his violin. Ah! he was a grand serenader; how his aureate locks would scintillate in the moon's rays. Now as it were:

We make the qualified statement not so much that he was not garrulous but because there are others who rate such mention above him. He has, however, a favorable eye for the co-eds, but this is not so blamable, since it might be attributed to his tender years. Far be it from us to imply that his chest protrudes any farther this year than it did last, since it is entitled to be adorned with an N. C. He had a chronic way of coming to the Di Society about once every quarter and opening up an absolutely indomitable line; one that looked like a cattle stampede in Mexico. But to do him justice, let it be known that such stampedes were not at very frequent intervals. And another thing about Renegar, he likes pretty girls, sweet girls, levable girls, although he's bashful-like and doesn't like a crowd, say more than half a dozen. YEWS, "Robbie" was always just as lanky as he is to-day, and these lanky fellows can always swat baseballs, but there is one particular in which "Robbie" has developed an unexpected turn—and we are not saying that he has lost any of his naivete either—he is known to have written some didactic verse during the last two years of diploma hunting. But perhaps he didn't mean to offend, just let the didacticism in without thought

Carolina Playmakers; U. N. C. Woman's Association.

NELLIE is such a regular good sport that we can hardly resist the temptation to joke through this sketch, but we will do our best to stand on firm ground.

Why women will go to a man's school rather than a woman's, and require everything to be set up after the Louis XIV court life plan, is more than we, after very thoughtful consideration, can understand. With Miss Roberson it is—er—different. She has that quality of knowing how to deal with human situations which makes of her a thoughtful, considerate good fellow, whom we all admire and respect.

THE most interesting thing about "Scrooge," since he sold his erratic Ford and quit playing his three-string violin, is that he writes to a fraulein in far-away Germany. And she writes him some of the sweetest bits of naïve English, for instance: "Mr. Roberts, I like American chocolate very much." Could that possibly be beaten? "B. N.," as suggested above, has a talent for music: Whenever he became rapt in the Muse of Orpheus, he used to make his three-stringed violin whisper and cry. He had a peculiar habit of practicing in the music room long after the midnight hour, while the "moping owl" did to the moon complain. It is also known that he carries a chest of yeggman's tools in his trunk, and that he sells books when not searching treasures from them in school. His friend "Engstrang" Cowan declares that he has a heart as big as a cabbage.

"BILL" is one of the "gentlemen from Shallotte." He represents Mecklenburg in much the same style as the rest. Not soon will the scenes of his cavorting around the basketball court fade from our memory. "Bill" is going into medicine, and if he is as successful in that as he has been in killing opponents on the court, and in making collections as he was in making life wearisome for the opposing forwards, he may still retain his likeness to a whirlwind to a ripe and pipe-smoking old age.

IN every group of men there is bound to be one who is, of them all, the homeliest, the ugliest, the most handicapped by Nature; likewise there is some one who is, of them all, the handsomest, the least repulsive to the sense of beauty, the highest endowed by the Dame as to physiognomy. We are grateful to Frank Bell for supplying the necessary assortment of characteristics for choice as the first, while we admit that one William Ruffin was chosen to serve as the second.

CARLYLE was originally from the Class of '10, but he was out for two years, which time was spent in the air service of Uncle Sam. Perhaps his work in military affairs gives him his penchant for hanging around Major Boye's R. O. T. C. It might be that he is going to run for General. We all know him best for his work on the basketball court. He is the "skipper" of that outfit this year. He made all-Southern forward, and not only made it but deserved it. Carlyle comes from the "City-by-the-Sea" where the plangent waves sob, and the dancing billows sing, while youths and maidens sport on their crests like the chorus of Euphrosyne.

HEARKEN back with me to the time when "Charlie" stood in Swain Hall and engaged one Sherrill in gentle conversation while the shrieking multitude hurled biscuits at them in high glee. Do you recall the way "Charlie" put his hand, lightly as the cider-down from the virgin nest, on Friend Sherrill's indignant shoulder and said: "I beg to differ with you, Mr. Sherrill." "Charlie" walks with a staccato tread that suggests a man driving tacks with his heels, bobbing his head the while like a chicken picking up corn. When he gets where he is going he has a seriousness of purpose that breaks down any such suggestion. He is a proficient Greek student and reads the documents in the original. His long suit is religion, he is said to be working out a new creed, one that will take in Sherrill and the rest of us.

FATTY" is and always has been a pud hunter; therefore, he turned loose of economics like a hot brick when Charlie Lee left and jumped on Prof. McKie's forensic dope. Now here, gentlemen, is the official chaperon of the Freshmen, there's no doubt about it. One of them once asked a Soph, as "Fatty" hove in sight, if that was John Terry coming down the road. We must admit that the question if not entirely beyond reprobation was at least venial. Since Capt. "DOC" has not done right by the campus; he possesses an extraordinary talent for music, but would never go out and exhibit it; he is a real piano player. He is more than an ordinary student, and those who are best acquainted with him declare that he is a pretty good sub for Britannica. He is able to use his pen after an enviable fashion, but most of his efforts at writing are read by some unknown person in Washington, and this unknown one answers back with beautifully-tinted envelopes.

"Doc" will answer to the name of "Samuel", if pronounced with the right inflection. He will then recite the Rubaiyat if asked in a diplomatic way; and sometimes he can be found in the right frame of mind to read his famous "Ode to Green Socks."

In addition to being a world-war veteran, this young native of Pikeville is somewhat of a bovine artist, having participated in a number of inter-society debates. NOW we attempt no arraignment of any man just because he is a follower of Terpsichore, nor do we hold any brief for any man for breaking a date when we say that they are things excellently adapted to being broken; but we do say that when a bird invites a young person to this rustic "Hill" for saltatorial purposes, and then apostatizes Terpsichore for Morpheus and slings a nap that would make Endymion look like an owl suffering from insomnia, we plead that patience soon reaches a point of total desuetude. Now we shall offer just this bit of counsel: never make a woman mad, and they get mad when they are disappointed, and the world knows that they are disappointed when they are all dolled up and nowhere to go, and above all, never sleep through a date if you would have female equanimity.

Although "Red" is one of the most quiet and unpretentious men on the campus, he can deliver when the showdown comes. He is a "bull" on Spanish and a shark on accounting. Since he has been off and on the "Hill" so often, he can tell you some very fitting things to be done in this neck of the woods.

Now he can speak of the French from first-hand knowledge—and we are going over the first chance we get, but that is incidental. ALAN is one of that doughty bunch that came down from Winston-Salem and boosted the football team for a number of years. This bunch was composed of "Pass" Fearrington, "Fats" Fulton, "Red" Powell, "Runt" Lowe, and "Bengie" Lippert, while Alan made the sixth member of the crew—all '21. Alan is out to be an engineer. He reads plays assigned by F. Koch for pastime. Obviously laying much store by special stuff, and probably believing that facial uniqueness would further his cause, he perpetrated a mustache last year. Oh mustachios, what foul crimes are committed in thy name!

GEORGE BRANSON ROBBINS

Jamestown, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 148; Height, 5 feet 4½ inches

Di. Society; Freshman Debating Society; Guilford County Club; Latin American Club.

ROBIE came to us from an atmosphere to, in a very quiet manner, contribute to a growing school spirit, which has now assumed enormous proportions. He is reserved and unassuming, yet, his vociferous enunciations proclaim him a running mate for Marion Butler when political affiliations are spoken of: We predict that Robbie will some day return to Jamestown and start through life with a ploughing gait.

Thus endeth the tale of each of the class.
Let nothing be added till all of us pass.
Our object has been, in the case of each one,
To poke just a little of innocent fun.

Now no one's been favored and no one's been spared,
For each by a friend of himself was prepared,
You've laughed at the others', so laugh at your own;
Be a sport, or you'll find that you're moping alone.

Elkin, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 160; Height, 6 feet

Di Society: Surry County Club; Vice-President, '18; Class Baseball, '17; Pilot, U. S. Army Aviation, '19; President Iredell Law Club; German Club,

BILL" is another survivor of the antebellum period, having traveled the route from Carolina to Uncle Sam's air service and back again. He has a way with the ladies and the art of making friends. We predict his success and that "They" will live happily ever after.

NATHAN ROSCOE BASS
Lucama, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 134; Height, 5 feet 10 inches

Wilson County Club; Iredell Law Club; Y. M. C. A.; German Club;

O. X.

BASS, like his home town, is very quiet and unassuming, but once behind the "box cars" of his reserve you find him a genuine fellow and a true sport. He believes in studying at all times and attending classes regularly—if there is nothing else to do. In addition to his work here he is taking correspondence courses at N. C. C. W., and Meredith. When with the ladies, his reserve is scattered to the proverbial four winds, and he becomes a combination of the original cave man and Harold Lloyd. With this combination, ladies to the front, please.

JAY BIVENS

Aquadale, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 138; Height, 6 feet

S. A. T. C.; Clerk Ruffin Law Club.

JAY always marveled at the scope of "The Law"; Jay once got into the Library and became so lost in the maze of volumes that he had to call on a friend to show him out. Jay never lost a friend, except in being unable to keep account of them all. Jay once edited a newspaper in which he had a privileged "column" headed, "This is the truth—as near as we dare print it." But Jay would never turn in his briefs and abstracts at the Law School until the "Old Man" found a little keg and fashioned a slit in the top, over which he placed a sign: "Drop your abstracts here," since which time Jay has ever been ahead.

DWIGHT BRANTLEY

Spring Hope, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 165; Height, 6 feet

A. E. F. Club; President McGehee Law Club; German Club; Cabin.

Φ Δ Φ; Φ Δ Θ.

DWIGHT is reliable, energetic, loyal, and efficient. He is a good student—not a pedant—a good mixer and an all-round man. Coming from Nash County, where, in the days before the great American Continent became a desert, other good things came from, he has been a credit on this campus, to his country, and his Alma Mater. On the ballroom floor, in class, or at a student gathering, "D" is "there with the goods". Like a number of Carolina men he left the pursuit of knowledge to do his bit in the A. E. F. We are not predicting great success for him simply because such is the custom of ye scribes, but we sincerely believe that the years will bring to him abundant reward—the kind that is secured only by efficiency, energy, and reliability.

FRANK ERTEL CARLYLE
Lumberton, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 160; Height, 5 feet 9 inches

MAKING it a settled principle, despite Mr. Melntosh's Contracts and Mr. Efird's Persons, never to miss a Carolina dance during his stay on the "Hill," Ertel has come to know intimately the majority of the girls from the strands of the tempestuous Hatteras to the moon-lit hills of the "Land of the Sky." His neatness and unfailing good humor have made him popular with our fair visitors. His popularity, however, is not confined to the fair visitors to the "Hill," but by his calmness and reserve among strangers, he has won the esteem of his friends by his ability to hold up his end in "slinging the bull" in any question, any time, and at any place, being especially proficient, however, in fraternity dope.

THOMAS DUNCAN COOPER
Graham, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 170; Height, 5 feet 11 inches

Alamance County Club; A. E. F. Club; Clark Law Club; Law School Baseball, '29; Law Basketball, '29; Glee Club, '29; German Club.

Φ Δ Φ.

"COOP" is another one of the boys who was delayed in beginning Blackstone's Permits, because of the well known recent world war. However, he has put the same energy and seriousness in his work in the law school as he did in the Hun-fighting, when his regiment, 120th Infantry, began making life hell for the ole Hindenberg line. Cooper has spent most of his time here on his studies, but he has given hearty support to worthwhile activities of the college.

PAUL BURT EDMUNDSON
Goldsboro, N. C.

Age, 24. Weight, 150; Height, 5 feet 10 inches
Wayne County Club; McGeehee Law Club; Pan-Hellenic Council; German Club; Coop.
Σ N.

"PAUL," one of the old standardbearers of the Class of 1910, was called away to fill an appointment with the Kaiser. After this duty was well performed, he returned for the legal course.

He is an enthusiastic man to be "reckoned" with as a member of the "Knights of the Round Table."

Something, we know not what, "but it is reported she is from Fayetteville," is causing him quite a bit of worry, and his noble brow becomes more prominent under his fast receding locks.

We predict that with this mark of distinction and his ability he will be among the leading barristers of the State.

ENOS TYLER EDWARDS
Polkton, N. C.

Age, 22. Weight, 145. Height, 5 feet 7 inches

EDWARDS joined our class at the beginning of our Junior year, therefore we only know him as a law student. He is a steadfast and consistent worker, always anxious to discuss some legal question. To be a lawyer is his desire; in that we wish him all success.

WILLIAM DURHAM HARRIS
Sanford, N. C.

Age, 24; Weight, 165; Height, 6 feet

A.B., Williams and Mary College '16; Graduate Student University Chicago '16; North Carolina Club; A. E. F. Club; Clark Law Club; Capt. E. A. Reserve Corps, U. S. A. Sigma Tau; Phi Delta Phi; Sigma Alpha.

"BILL" came to us from the army in 1919. He presents that rare combination of a good egg and a good student and is a well rounded and deep thinking youth. If any one good quality can be said to stand out above another, perhaps his skill as a writer should be placed first. "Bill" looks forward to the time when he will be the proud possessor of a bungalow and all that goes with it. The call of law, to him, is an imperative one. We are expecting great things from "Bill," even unto sending his clients to the electric chair or the poorhouse.

ROBERT ROY HAWFIELD

Matthews, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 190; Height, 6 feet 2 inches

ROY'S good nature has won a place in the hearts of all who know him. He is a good mixer and a good sport. He refuses, however, to take his college life seriously, but firmly believes that he is going to make Caruso lie down and die when he starts his law and vocal career. We give him the credit for doing his very best to help out in the Glee Club, though it does seem a rather useless expenditure on his part, and a spiketail looks good on him.

JASPER BENJAMIN HICKS

Henderson, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 142; Height, 5 feet 8 inches
Phi Society; Vaner County Club, President, '19; North Carolina Club,
O X.

"J. B." is one of the most popular men in J. the class. He swears by Blackstone, quotes Tiffany, and defies anyone to blind him on real property. He is constantly on the job, and when it comes to absorbing "legal dope" he has no equal. An exceptionally bright student, a quick thinker, withal a good fellow, his keen intellect and energy will mean much to his profession. So here's to "J. B.," may he live long and happy, but never forget the bright stars which shone in the blue about the night of December 15, 1920.

CLENI BOLTON HOLDING

Neuse, N. C.

Age, 24; Weight, 210; Height, 6 feet 4 inches
A.B., '18; President, Wake County Club, '19, '20; Clerk
McGehee Law Club, '20; All Class Basketball, '20; Student Council, '20; Campus Cabinet, '20, '21; President, Pan-
Hellenic, '20, '21; Coop; Ginghoul.

Φ Δ Φ; B O II.

I'D rather be first in a Tuscan village than second in Rome." With a will of a Caesar and a tongue of a modern Cicero, "C" has marked his place in every undertaking. A man in stature and a man in action, he marches from a lengthy Freshman to an honored Senior captain, from a servile seaman to a worthy ensign, from a layman to a lawyer. And now he leaves us. We wish him bon voyage. "For dearly must we prize thee; who find in thee a bulwark for the cause of man."

LAWRENCE WOOTEN JARMAN
Seven Springs, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 160; Height, 5 feet 9½ inches

Wayne County Club; Phi Society, Vice-President (3), President (4), Commencement Debate (3); Manager Swain Hall.

E Φ Δ.

JARMAN is the best known boy in Chapel Hill, as he is the headknocker at "Swine Hall." Hailing from Seven Springs, a wonderful village somewhere in Carolina, he has come here to make a record. He received an A.B. last year, and now he is here to tackle the paupers' poorhouse profession—law. He might make good, we hope not. "L. W." is a hard worker, for he must work to feed seven hundred hungry stomachs at "Swine." He will be a live wire in his town, for he believes in doing big things. We are counting on him to do great things in law, and at least to know how to feed a wife and family.

MACK MURPHY JERNIGAN
Dunn, N. C.

Age, 26; Weight, 165; Height, 5 feet 11 inches

Phi Society; Sampson County Club, President; North Carolina Club; Ruffin Law Club, Vice-President; Law Library; Student Member North Carolina Reconstruction Committee.

MACK is his name. Even the girls of N. C. C. W. have learned that. But Mack is first a student and is thoroughly grounded in his work, zealous in his pursuit of his studies in law and zealous of his reputation in his work, and admires his pros as do the pros admire him. War broke in on his law, but he has now buckled down and it comes to him like a baby handling a candy roll. He is efficient in all that he tackles and we know that he is going to play hell with the law.

SAMUEL DAVID JOHNSON
Angier, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 150; Height, 5 feet 11 inches

JOHNSON is one of those rare fellows whom we instinctively look upon as a future leader. His two years with us in the Law School have impressed upon us the correctness of our first impression. Johnson hails from the good old county of Johnston and he says it is the best in the State. Since his sincerity cannot be questioned, we accept it; but, as he says, "with the Clause of Defences." He is an excellent student, has a highly constructive mind, and we predict, will make a good office boy for some good lawyer.

CLEMENT MANLY LEWELLYN
Dobson, N. C.

Age, 25; Weight, 108; Height, 6 feet 2 inches

Surry County Club, President (3); Oak Ridge Club, Vice-President (4); Battle Law Club; Class Football (2, 3); Class Basketball (3); Varsity Baseball (1, 2, 3, 4); Wearer of "N. C."

Θ X.

"LEW" came to the University from Oak Ridge Institute back in the "ante-bellum" days of pulchritude, and had the distinction of making Varsity baseball during his first year. He was forced out of his old class when he answered the challenge of "Bill der Gross." "Lew" is made up of a peculiar mixture that forces itself upon you; his "Fairbank's" smile and athletic ability have made him popular with all students. We see before us a budding young barrister aspiring to fame in the world of Cobb, Jackson, and Speaker.

WILLIAM ELMER MATTHEWS
Clinton, N. C.

Age, 24; Weight, 165; Height, 6 feet

Phi Society; Freshman Debate; Sampson County Club; Y. M. C. A.; North Carolina Club; Manager University Inn; University Law Club; Ruffin Law Club; Masonic Club; A. F. A. M.

"W. E." entered with the Class of '18, but his college course was interrupted by the war, and for two years he was out, but with the same determination with which he went for the "Hun" he came back and took up the study of law. Throughout his whole college career he has made a splendid record. During the five years he has been with us he has been connected with various college activities, and in each of them he has shown his worth. He has a splendid business ability, and an inexhaustible line which he relies on to carry his point. In the practice of law, which he has chosen to make his life's work and for which he is so thoroughly qualified, we predict for him a brilliant success.

ZEBULON ARCHIBALD McCALL
Elmo, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 145; Height, 5 feet 9 inches

"ZEB" came to us in 1910, after getting his B. S. at N. C. State, being politically inclined, he decided to study law.

It seems that "Zeb" has withheld from any participation in campus life here, but this can be accounted for by the fact that he was active and a leader in every move at State. To prove the above, take a glance at the medals he wears.

To know "Zeb" is to know a comrade in every way. He is firm, but enjoys lots of fun and persists in wearing the unique vest.

FOREST GLENWOOD MILES

Warrenton, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 145; Height, 5 feet 7 inches
 A. B., U. N. C.'19; Tar Heel Board, '17-'18, '19, Editor-in-Chief; '19, Majoror Board, Assistant Editor-in-Chief; '19, YACKETY YACK Board, '18, Assistant Manager; Varsity Baseball, '19; Athletic Council, '19; Phi Society, Secretary, '17, Vice-President, '18; Debating Council, '18; Warrenton High School Club, President; Warren County Club, President, '18; North Carolina Club; Latin-American Club; Freshman Debater's Medal, '15; Inter-Society Sophomore Debate, '17; Sophomore-Junior Debate, '18; Commencement Debate, '18; Winner Bingham Medal, '18; Senior Class Orator, '19; McGhee Law Club, '20, '21; German Club.
 Δ T Δ.

HERE is a true son of Carolina. Six years spent under the fostering care of U. N. C., has given him poise without conceit, and qualifications without affectations. From "booloo" to Editor-in-Chief of the Tar Heel is progress for any pilgrim. He skated on the avenue of nearly every college activity.—skated because he often fell. But he knew that a worm is the only thing that never falls, so each time: "Resurgum"—Excelsior.

CHARLES LESLIE NICHOLS
Brevard, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 150; Height, 5 feet 11 inches
 Class Baseball; Class Basketball; Class Tennis; Candidate Varsity Tennis; Treasurer Junior Law Class; Di Society; North Carolina Club; Y. M. C. A.; "9019" (Trinity); Clark Law Club, President, '21; Glee Club, '19, '20, Manager, '21; German Club.
 2 T; Δ T Δ.

THOUGH having been with us but two years, "Nick" has entered heartily into our life at Carolina, having participated in class athletics, literary work, and the management of the musical clubs; the latter with a degree of excellence hitherto unknown. He is one of our best law students and is a candidate for the A. B. With the ladies, he lets his lights shine that they may praise his good works. A hard student and a good fellow, "Nick" is going to pay all his debts in the world and leave us all in debt. But when he starts law, let the court crier yell, "God Save the State!"

JOHN HILL PAYLOR

Laurinburg, N. C.

Age, 24. Weight, 160; Height, 5 feet 11 inches

"JOHNNIE" is the embodiment of just those principles and traits which enables us to predict for him a sure and successful future. His five years with us are symbolized by his A.B., LL.B. degree, but his outward polish and refinement and his inward personality bear witness also. And 624 Sundays without a single "grat" on the sabbath school has added a vital element to his composite whole. Democratic, affable, and accomplished, he is a fine fellow and proficient in his profession.

WILLIAM BURBANK PENNY

Hendersonville, N. C.

Age, 20. Weight, 152. Height, 5 feet 7 inches

"BILL" entered the University in the fall of '18, but after one year of S. A. T. C. education, lest we forget, he was following the line of the least resistance, he decided to identify himself with the "heirs-apparent" of the wig and mantle of the Hon. Justice Blackstone. He has not appropriated the entire cord, but we believe and hope that the future holds for him a great position in law. Here we leave him to the Bar.

NEAL YATES PHARR

Charlotte, N. C.

Age, 23; Weight, 160; Height, 6 feet

A.B., Davidson College '19; Iredell Law Club; Pan-Hellenic Council, '21; Coop.;
Σ Τ; Φ Δ Φ; K A.

HERE is a true son of Davidson, we hope, with a Carolina "finish", and a lawyer's curiosity. Neal is one of our best law students with an additional ability to take more notes in fifteen minutes than the rest of the class can in an hour. Neal prepares his work in the afternoons, on account of his eyes, and claims to be getting his college education by degrees. We believe him. But his happiest hours are spent when the Gym is a celestial elysium, and the "Hill" is adorned with fine feathered birds. Give him a guitar and a pipe, and it's like dropping a nickel in the slot. Neal is a good hand for holding friendships, and this fact together with his general good nature and a knowledge of the law, will score for him success in his chosen profession.

JOHN ALBERT PRITCHETT

Rawlings, Va.

Age, 24; Weight, 130; Height, 5 feet 10 inches

"PRITCH'S" college days embody a period of supreme service to himself and his University. He began in the field of physics and history; later became Instructor in Physics, and finally ended in the realm of Blackstone, Littleton and Coke. His profound sincerity and high devotion to right has won for him a place of confidence and trust in the hearts of his fellows.

DAWSON EMERSON SCARBOROUGH
Hoffman, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 150; Height, 5 feet 9 inches

EMERSON came to us from the sandhills accompanied by pluck and indecision. For two years, indecision held him in the balance, but pluck held its own. AB did not suit him, he wanted something exact in which his business-like mind could have full sway, so in 1918 he chose law as his profession. We feel that in the near future he will "do things," serving to his utmost capacity as a lawyer of the people, for he has character and ability, the essential attributes of a real man.

Rumor trumpets that the "fair sex" are weaving the threads of his heart with the spindle of fate. It must be as he says, "sooner or later the noblest passion must ebb or plough into the life of man in order for him to appreciate and develop the richest, truest life."

WILLIAM WHITFIELD SLEDGE
Weldon, N. C.

Age, 23; Weight, 135; Height, 5 feet 9 inches

"WHIT" became dissatisfied with being the youngest bank cashier in the State, and entered Carolina to train himself for a field of wider opportunities. The two years which he spent at the University of Virginia, if we are to judge them by the two years which he has spent here, was not time thrown away. Although entering a full term behind us, by diligent and consistent efforts he has gradually worked his way to the front. Surely no one with a knowledge of all the facts would predict for him anything but a brilliant and successful future.

LEWIS EVERETT TEAGUE

High Point, N. C.

Age, 22. Weight, 155. Height, 5 feet 11 1/2 inches

"LUKE" is a man of fact and matter of agreeable and generous disposition, who carries a nature as serious as his loyalty to his friends is deep, and a character that is marked by dependability and a scrupulous care as to sincerity and principle.

ROBERT LEE WHITMIRE

Hendersonville, N. C.

Age, 23. Weight, 160; Height, 5 feet 10 inches

WHITMIRE received his academic training at Washington and Lee University and Trinity College, served in the American Expeditionary Forces, and upon being discharged, came to Carolina to study law. He is a persistent worker and his work has shown a sustained high character.

GEORGE LEWIS WIMBERLY
Rocky Mount, N. C.

Age, 126; Weight, 155; Height, 5 feet 10 inches
Twin County Club; Dramatic Club, '15, '16, '17, President,
'19; Glee Club, '15, '16, '17; Satyrs; Vaudeville Club, '15, '16,

Class Baseball, '17; Law Baseball, '20; President
Battle Law Club, '21; Leader Sophomore Hop, '17; Leader
Spring German, '21; German Club; Coop; Gorgon's Head.
Φ Δ Φ; Δ K E.

A SECOND Jack Falstaff, though not quite so pompous, running a secret joke shop and delving in legal literature to his heart's content, and combining both to the satisfaction of his friends. Behind a free, open smile he wears an iron will which Blackstone alone has been able to confound: "Law is a jealous mistress, and he who would serve her must serve none other." We very strongly suspect that "Buck" would rather make as his a little more liberal and "live in a house by the side of the road to be a friend to man."

One Hundred Seventy-five

WILLIAM BRANTLEY WONBLE
Cary, N. C.

Age, 24; Weight, 145; Height, 5 feet 11 inches

If Brantley has an enemy, such a character has not had that quantity of boldness to assert himself. We sometimes think that such men as he would be performing his purpose if he did nothing more than to take the grind out of the daily routine of life. To be near Brantley is to be optimistic, active, thoughtful. Like a true Southern gentleman, with sparkling eyes and smiling lips, with a gushing play of divinely amorous pleasantries, he overwhelms, he conquers. God Save the Queens!!!

WILLIAM BAYARD YELVERTON
Goldsboro, N. C.

Age, 24; Weight, 140. Height, 5 feet 8 inches

THIS young gentleman, like many others of his time, took that sightseeing tour and participated in the fireworks spectacle which Uncle Sam staged in contest with one Wilhelm Uber Alles. He left immediately after graduation in the spring of '17. His true qualities of energy and ability, of quietness and decision which came to the surface in the Service have been portrayed to us since his return to study law. He makes it a policy to seldom speak, but always says something when he does.

Trinity College A.B.; Tennis Coach, 20; Director Class Athletics '20-'21; Assistant in Pharmacology; Gorgon's Head.

ALAN'S academic accomplishments record athletic championships, scholarship honors, trusts and responsibilities. His brief time at Carolina is found to be of distinctive credit and worth. A leader in all phases of University life, eager for the best, ready to help all, ever on the go, always looking and climbing upward.

WILLIAM WALDO BOONE
Durham, N. C.

Age, 22; Weight, 145; Height, 5 feet 8 inches
Trinity College A.B., '19; Durham County Club; Medical Society.

HE entered Carolina a regular neophyte and has the distinction, with some seventy-five others, of adapting himself well to the circumstances of present life. He is a good student and allows nothing to come before his duties at Caldwell Hall, as well as Swain Hall. He has a ready ability for handling practical matters and is fortunate in that he has picked a profession for which he has an intense love.

"T. P." made his mark in the University before he entered the Med School, but he need not have a key pendant hanging from his chain to pass his med work. He staggered through quite well. Due to the remarkable tenacity with which he separated the ilium from the ilium, he was chosen the assistant in anatomy, and has filled the place in a creditable manner. He is a good student, though at times a Bacchical desire for levity and revelry prompts him to take a night off and visit the "Pick." But Brinn generally gets what he is going after, and with as little trouble as anyone, though if you are expecting to see him get an "X" you will be disappointed.

DANIEL GREENLEE CALDWELL

If "Greelee" will pardon us, we shall be so audacious as to assert that in him one really beholds an actual epitome of imperturbability and calmness. The great thing about "Greelee" is that he keeps his ship on an even keel, as he has that rare and priceless qualification of being an expert helmsman. For he steers a ship which moves steadily, unswervingly, consistently, eagerly, successfully onward, disdainful of the bits of driftwood that lie scattered in the course. And when one picks the right course, has a definite destination, and sticks to that course, what more need be said for the final goal to be reached.

NEVER down-hearted, peppy, vivacious, eager to win—"Osky wow wow!" With the marines in France his performances merited him citations and decorations. Although we have none such to offer here, we hold him high in our estimation, and believe him to be one of the most practical men in the class. His level head and a spirit of daring with ability to handle any situation arising will carry him over all obstacles safe to a seat in Valhalla.

"BOB'S" troubles with deans ended when he left Trinity, as he and Dean Andy have been excellent friends for two years. The officials of the University did not want to wear out their good buildings, so they put "Bob" in Carr Barn where he has roared for two years. His navy ways are especially pleasing and he never gets tired of telling of Paris Island. We know that the inmates of Carr will bid him Godspeed when he leaves, though in a different spirit to what we do, for we shall always think of "Bob" as a jolly, pleasing good fellow.

CHARLES BERNARD HERMAN
Conover, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 162; Height, 5 feet 7 inches
Lenoir College A.B., '19; Medical Society; Catawba County Club.

ANY good citizen of Catawba County could tell you where Conover is located, and it has been Herman's job at Chapel Hill to tell us where that fair retreat is. When quite young he took a look over his territory and decided that the community needed a first-class doctor and nurse. He has not told us yet just who the nurse will be.

Herman has been a steady worker in med. a conservative in politics, and has adopted as his religious creed: "Nature never does anything in a hurry". We all agree with him that the process of absorption is slow, but we believe we shall all arrive at our destination if we continue to absorb.

CHARLES CASWELL MASSEY

"C. C." displays such an appealing personality that he never fails to cheer the fair ones whenever he meets them. One of the fundamental tenets of "C.'s" philosophy demands that he take life easy, and to make sure that he never violates this principle. In fact, there are two things that we admire about our ladies' man; his behavior as a good sport on all occasions, and his habit of assigning to everything the place that rightly belongs to it.

ZERAN LEWIS MERRITT

"L" is small in stature but big in heart. The warmth in his heart is so great that at times we actually believe it shines out of his fine brown eyes. He and Bob Hambrick hang together like two brothers? Though they are so antithetical in stature, they have none of the differences characteristic of David and Goliath, Mutt and Jeff, or other notable pairs. He is unselfish to an unusual degree. His qualities are of the best type, because they improve with age, like good wine, books or friends.

CLEMENT ROSENBERG MONROE
Biscoe, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 148; Height, 5 feet 8 inches
Di. Society; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society; Medical Society, President (2); North Carolina Club; Montgomery County Club.

CLEMENT is one of those men who exist mainly in our ideals. Like Garrick, he is a salad: "For in him we see oil, vinegar, salt and sweetness agree." Warm and frank, yet enough reserved, industrious, with enough of play—a jewel because he is consistent. The fact that he admires and practices the Carolina spirit is no doubt the reason for our liking him so well. Success awaits any strong man, and his strength is of that rare variety: Two-fold.

RUSKIN once wrote an essay that he called "The Dignity of Labour." Now "Dick" is all that and more. He is as dignified as a proverbial judge, and even more laborious than was Hercules on Stable Detail. His industry gives to the rest of us uneasy and uncomfortable feelings, for in comparison to him, it appears that we toil not neither do we spin. And yet, he is not all work and energy nor dignity. Witness his daily capers with Bob Hambrick; listen to his tales of prowess with the ladies. "Dick" is thoroughly in love with his work.

SMITH has a variety of names. Like William Jennings he also ran one dark night; hence, we often call him, "Ran." He is of the slow and easy type; amiable, friendly, undisturbed, and accommodating. His characteristic of being undisturbed is wonderful; he fairly radiates, "for I go on forever. Never too busy to help, and never too hurried to pass along the good word, "Ran" is well fitted for just those things that will some day help him to push a Ford for some good doctor.

"MIGHTY" takes a pardonable amount of pride in his pseudonym, and rightly so, for we must remember that it is only his undying devotion to his work that has kept him from entering the hammer-throw in the springtime. "Mighty" has been with us now for several years, and has become a most important factor in that invulnerable combination of Smith, Schenck, and Taylor. We predict some brilliant operations from this trio.

GEORGE HERBERT SUMNER

GEORGE is an optimist. By his hard work he has shown that he can stick to his work by hard toil, and by his results he typifies a regular med student. Our observations of George lead us to believe that our worthy friend Bacon was partly wrong when he said, "reading maketh a full man," for reading and study seem to have made George a sleepy man. Being interested in his future welfare, it gives us satisfaction to know that there is one affiliation which will never trouble him—that is insomnia.

HIS medical record has not detracted from his former excellence, but has only served to enhance his even, composed temperament. He has frequently shown his baseball sense in bacteriology, mixing up the slow answers (when he was sure) with the fast ones (when he wasn't). Although not a member of the rural population, we should like to point out for the younger students that this exemplary gentleman walked into school every morning and out again at night. He has a genuine zeal for work.

HERE is an active mobile organism. He is highly pathogenic for the female sex when inoculated, during the fall dances. "Bunny" went to V. M. I. four glorious years, and strange to say, has been radiantly happy every Sunday morning after football returns. Let's see: what teams have not been defeated this season? Well, there is Harvard, Georgia Tech, Trinity, V. M. I., etc. That is the way it goes. Our final admonition to him is that he had best avoid practicing for nervous women.

PAUL ALLISON YODER

K.P.

ALTHOUGH Yoder came to us from another college, he has become so assimilated that today he is of the best type of Carolina man. He is fully as steady and accurate in the laboratory as he is on the baseball field where he won his fame. His qualities are sterling, and therefore, lasting. His pep is of the short-step variety; never lagging during the game, and not exhausted at the end of the ninth inning. Yoder is a man who inspires confidence, and after he inspires it, he holds it.

CHARLES DAVID BEDDINGFIELD
Wakefield, N. C.

Age, 20; Weight, 160; Height, 5 feet 9 inches
Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; Franklin County Club.

WE call young Beddingfield "Senator." He acquired this cognomen appendix through a high state of dignity which he persists in constantly wearing about on his chest, rather than being identified with any political sect prevailing at this University knowledge shop. Charles David woke up in Raleigh after the N. C.-N. C. State game last fall to discover two gold fishes floating airlessly about in his pocket, and he immediately adopted them as his chief object of adoration. He has taught them various fancy dives and strokes which has made of them remarkable creatures to behold. Stored somewhere in his remarkable sense of balance he cherishes the fond hope of being a model citizen in more ways than one, and to judge from local progress we would say that he has laid a very good foundation on which to begin. "Senator" will be back with us next year to take a post graduate course in Chemistry.

Mr. Beddingfield—Ladies and Gentlemen

COBBA came to us from we know not where; all we know is that we looked around one morning and here he was in full bloom. He literally drank in the Carolina Spirit. We would not go wrong by saying that he is a man of many talents. He is an artist (writes beautiful love letters), a musician (snores wonderfully well), an actress (plays the part of a female), and a would-be scientist. It is hard to say just what will become of this young man but, since every man is born another's equal, he has about as much chance getting to the Hall of Fame as the next one.

"OLEO" is one of the direct descendants of the great Lord Oleo Margarine, the man who made synthetic butter famous. This lad is not of the aristocratic type either, he is a very quiet fellow in class, but when he's with a bunch of friends he can make as much fuss as a thirty-five cent coffee grinder—got a good line too!!! Edwards is planning to take the Pharmacy Board this year and settle down in Raleigh with a certain little lady, whose name we will refrain from mentioning. Here's to "Oleo," may he have plenty of feathers and everything in the Love Nest.

WE have for your careful consideration the most active member of the Amalgamated Order of Pickwick Goers. Sleep, being one of the necessities of good living, prevents "Pete" from carrying out his innermost desire of establishing himself on Pickwick Row. He came to the University with the thoughts of an A. B. uppermost in his mind and failed to give us a reason for shifting over to Pharmacy very suddenly. It is rumored that Dr. E. Vernon soon made a remarkable discovery and disclosed two or three reasons to Dr. Thomas J. around the Christmas holidays. You may desire to know what he spends his leisure hours doing. He studies—studies industriously—letters of a pink and lavender hue which come in as often as the consistency of mail delivery in Chapel Hill permits.

HOWELL NEWTON GUION

Unionville, N. C.

Age, 20; Weight, 154; Height, 6 feet 1 inch
Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; Union County Club.

GUION has a nickname of "Pap," but he is usually spoken of as Dr. Guion, due to the fact that he is a very learned young man. This figure graced our halls during the days of the S. A. T. C. and after the Armistice he left us to return in the fall of the past year. We regretfully admit that this is no ladies-man, because the whole school lives up to that reputation. He has been known to walk blocks to avoid coming in the neighborhood of a rustle. Having so diligently worked, he has raised himself to the best student in his class.

JOHN WILLIAM HARRELL

Beaufort, N. C.

Age, 21; Weight, 138; Height, 5 feet 7 inches
Assistant in Pharmacy; Simpson Pharmaceutical Society, President (4); Secretary and Treasurer Senior Pharmacy Class; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society; Carteret County Club.

WE have heard that there is rhythm in the vociferations of infancy — well — you should see "Shorty" walk. His whole system seems to automatically respond to the motion of "Jazz." We think this is due to the fact that he is a musician. As his nickname implies, he always believes in taking short cuts, especially across the campus when there is an opportunity to grat a class. "Shorty" never studies except the night before exams. His favorite expression is, "Say Charley, I sure did get knocked cold that time." His best pal is his trap drum outfit, and he's an artist with the chop sticks. We can picture him some fifty years from now wearing a celluloid collar and selling Epsom Salts.

EVERETT LEE PADGETT

Marion, N. C.

Age, 24; Weight, 142; Height, 5 feet 10 inches
Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; McDowell County Club.

"VAMPUS," as he is known by the Pharmacy School, is one of the boys of the old school. He first faced Tommy J back in 1915, after which he decided to work a few years before completing his course. "Vampus" is a quiet and studious chap when alone or with stags; but, when thrown among the fair sex, it doesn't take him long to get wound up—and, so we've been told, he has an irresistible line. Padgett smokes perfumed cigarettes of a foreign brand, and uses French perfumes and face powders exclusively. His favorite pastime is dreaming, and he studies when he has no dreaming to do. "Vampus" says he's going into the Retail Pill Business.

WILLIAM ALLEN PROUT

Louisville, Ky.

Age, 23; Weight, 138; Height, 5 feet 9 inches
Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association.

AFTER a two-year sojourn at Washington and Lee, Prout decided that Pharmacy was his calling, so he came to Carolina for the acquisition of the fundamentals in that profession. He is a man of few words, but of deep thought, and though this is his first year here, he is a popular member of his class. He is a good student and a good egg, and what more need be said of a man.

He believes that it is nice to get up in the morning (but it is better to stay in bed). It is a pity that they do not let professional students wear Phi Beta Kappa keys, for Reaves never makes less than a two on any course. We are afraid to predict Roy's future.

"RED" came to Carolina in 1919 from Randolph-Macon Academy. He first thought of taking academic work, but something persuaded him to register for Pharmacy. We hope he enjoyed it. He stuck to Pharmacy long enough to get a senior rating, and then joined the forces of Blaekstone, Littleton and Coke, Inc. "Red" believes that a well-rounded man should have a little knowledge of all of the professions. Consequently, we are expecting him to go into Welfare Work in the near future. Of course he is a good student; he believes in "Bull Sessions," stag parties, and even likes to hang around the fair sex. We are afraid to say what will finally become of "Red," but are betting two to one that he will follow the ministry.

BIG Stuff's" motto is "never let work interfere with pleasure," and he always keeps this motto in mind. He is very popular with the ladies, and on the dance floor he shakes a wicked hip. During the war he received his military training at U. N. C. in Martin's awkward squad, and was ready to become a first class private when the war ended. He has not forgotten the commands "squads East" and "squads West." He is good at his studies when he is not at the bridge table. If he will only roll pills like he rolls horse-shoes he will make some pharmacist.

WILLIAM McK. FETZER

If, in your travels through Hindustan, Cape Town, Singapore or any other remote corner of the world, it should ever be required of you to give the name of a gentleman in athletics, you have the liberty to give in reply, William McK. Fetzer. Carolina has met this believer in clean athletics in teams which always put up a hard fight, because he had drilled into each individual the fact that a game is never won until it is over.

In no department of the activities of the University is a man afforded a greater opportunity for the development of a fine school spirit than in athletics played openly and above board. The record of Coach Fetzer proves him to be well worthy of the trust accorded him of fostering and maintaining that nobler Carolina Spirit, as expressed in the persons of men like Dr. Battle, Dr. Graham, and Dean Stacy.

CAPTAIN FEIMSTER

an enviable and undeniable position as champions is the record of Coach Lourcey's and Captain Feimster's heirlings. A jinx persistently hovered over them during the first part of the season, and we had the ill luck of dropping several games by one and two-point margins. We came back strong at A. & E., however, and walloped her at Chapel Hill 9 to 0; but then we lost ignominiously to Wake Forest, taking the small end of an 8 to 1 score; but that defeat marked the end of the downward trail. From then on we set about staging one of the gamest come-backs ever accomplished by any team. The Northern tour, although we won but one game, is to be considered a success, as we met and held to one and two-point margins the best teams in the East. Pennsylvania, Catholic University, Swarthmore, Maryland State, and Virginia were the nines encountered on this trip.

The series with Virginia ran but two games, the Orange and Blue grabbing them both. The first was at Charlottesville, where Baughman lifted the ball out of the park in the ninth for a homer, which changed the figures on the scoreboard from a 3 to 3 tie to a 4 to 3 victory for them. At Greensboro there occurred one of the most thrilling contests of the year, and again Virginia won in the ninth. For eight innings the score had see-sawed back and forth. Carolina entered the ninth, two runs in the lead, but this did not prove sufficient, for Virginia seemed to have just the right number up her sleeve to win, and win she did, 8 to 7.

The Season

THE season of 1920 is a notable one in the Baseball annals of the University.

Despite the fact that the team won but 8 out of the 19 games scheduled, it walked away with the state championship and at least one world's record. We came by the undisputed laurels of state championship after successfully and decisively defeating Wake Forest, A. & E. and Trinity in the last three contests of the season and by the world's record because "Lefty" Wilson used such an unheard of quantity of pitched balls in defeating Trinity in the last game of the season, 52 in nine innings.

From a ragged and unpromising start to

The games with A. & E. ran to a three game series, the Blue and White bagging the necessary two. State grabbed the first after a wonderful struggle in Raleigh, 6 to 5, but the next two went to Carolina: the second at Chapel Hill 9 to 0, and the rubber at Raleigh 6 to 2.

The series with Wake Forest resulted in an even break, but since Wake Forest had been twice defeated by State there was no need of a third contest to decide the State Championship. The first game went to the Old Gold and Black at Chapel Hill 8 to 1, but revenge was secured in full when we shut them out at Wake Forest 9 to 0.

Trinity died hard, but against the sphinx-like riddle of Wilson's pitching she was helpless and lost both games; the first at Durham 1 to 0, and the second on Emerson Field 2 to 1, the latter going eleven innings. It was this last game of the season that definitely clinched the State Banner for us. There it was also that Wilson hung up his world's record, and was acknowledged premier twirler of the state, and voted one of the best in the South. It was a just reward, therefore, for his record in the box, that at the banquet following the Trinity game he was unanimously elected captain of the 1921 team.

That something was wrong we all know, and that the radical changes in policy and equipment necessary to bring about the proper corrections will be made before the next season we are equally certain. A bad season, though rare, is not entirely unknown in the athletic records of the University. Our predecessors have weathered the storm and so may we. Certainly the student body of Carolina may never be termed "fair weather sailors" only.

The Season

THE season frankly was unsuccessful. The team got away with a bad start and seemed to never be able to gain a hold of sufficient strength to do such effective work as had characterized the two seasons previous. Many explanations have been advanced as to the cause of this slump,—the coaching system, lack of student support, and the like. But it is not our premise to here dwell upon the whys and wherefores of the failure. Suffice to say that the record of last season, though, upon the face of it, bad, shall appear so as a record of scores only, and never as the true testimony of the spirit and energy shown by the members of the squad who daily went out and, on the dust and mud of Emerson Field, gave their best to Carolina.

LOWE
Captain-elect

The season's first encounter was with Wake Forest. Supporters flocked in from all over the state, expecting to see Coach Fuller's machine swamp the Baptists. The score was 6 to 0 and Carolina's showing a bitter disappointment.

The contest with Yale at New Haven instilled new hope into the hearts of the supporters of the Blue and White. The score was 21 to 0 in favor of Eli, but represented a much better showing than had been made the Saturday previous.

South Carolina at Chapel Hill was the next game for the eleven. Hanby recovered Lowe's blocked punt and scored the only touchdown of the game which ended 6 to 0. This contest marked the last victory of the season, and marked the beginning of the downward trail.

State College, Maryland, and V.M. I. followed in succession. State put up decidedly the better game and won 13 to 3. Carolina's only score resulting from a field goal by Lowe during the first period. In this important contest, Pharr, veteran Varsity halfback, broke his ankle and was forced to retire for the remainder of the season. Maryland was next met at Chapel Hill. The score was 13 to 0. Carolina failed to register. Against the flying squadron of V.M.I. the Blue and White was helpless. The reconstructed team that Coach Fuller sent in to stop the onslaught was unequal to the task, and Leach and Stuart ran wild. Score: 24 to 0.

The Davidson encounter proved a decided surprise, and the Wildcats humiliated Carolina, who, entering the game with a crippled team and a season-old jinx, never exhibited any marked punch on the offensive, and fell down at the crucial moment on the defensive, losing 7 to 0.

The Virginia game, played in Charlottesville for the first time since the commencement of the series, twenty-five years ago, marked the end of the season. The Tar Heels put up a game and determined fight, but were unable to score against the Virginians who were undoubtedly superior, and 14 to 0 was the score that rang down the curtain upon the season of 1920.

SPENCER—Captain

SEEM COMPATIBLE to its position, Captain Spencer's team, under the guidance of Dr. Kent Brown, who volunteered his services as coach, hung up a record that will long hold light with the records set by some of the famous pre-war aggregations.

The team won handily from Trinity in the opener, took second place in the North Carolina, V. M. I., Virginia Meet, captured first place in the State Meet, and placed fourth in the S. I. A. A. Meet, in which only eight men were entered. In this last meet Nichols distinguished himself by winning three out of four "firsts" that we carried away. In the State Meet, Spencer broke the record of 11 feet flat, set by George Strong some years ago, by going over at 11 feet 2. Harden won the 440 with difficulty in $52\frac{1}{5}$ seconds.

ALTHOUGH INCLUDING these individual stars, "first" men in the vernacular of the path, the team was composed also of an unusually dependable number of men who could always be relied upon to bring home the bacon in the form of "seconds" and "thirds," and it was due to them, equally with the stars, that the season was the success that it was.

The Season

THE Season of 1921 may, without doubt, be set down as the most successful in the basketball history of Carolina. The quint lost but two games within the state, and those to Trinity and State by margins of only one and two points. Beside this record of excellence in the state, the team undertook with success a more extensive Northern tour than was ever before attempted by a Southern five. Nine games were played on this trip, and the strongest aggregations in the East encountered. Three games were won and six lost, but all of the defeats were by very close scores, and the Carolina quint was highly praised for its unexcelled passing game by the Northern papers.

Four letter men, Captain Shepard, Erwin, Liipfert, and Morris formed the nucleus about which the flying quint was built; and with Woodall, last year sub, and Carmichael, Hanby, McDonald, Williams, and Eaton from last year's crack Freshman aggregation, there was no better material for a winning quint in Dixie. Coach Boye, who had acted as Coach last year, soon whipped them into shape, and ere the team was ready to set out upon its Northern rampage, it was endowed with tricks and combinations of the game that were to cause much trouble to the great Northern quints, even of Army and Eli.

Back from the long Northern tour, the team set out upon a victorious march through the state that never ceased until the best North Carolina quints had been overwhelmingly defeated and the laurels of state championship were safe for Carolina.

Every man who played upon the Blue and White quint of 1921 was a star. In the first Trinity game Carmichael led as goal getter, in the second Trinity contest it was Hanby, and in the last Virginia game the honor fell to Captain Shepard. McDonald won a name by his clever passing, and many of his team-mates' goals are due to his artful "feeding". As for Erwin at guard, a glance at the record of opposing forwards is sufficient testimony to the excellence of his play. Liipfert played a consistent and dependable game until injuries in the Yale game disabled him. To Major Boye there goes no small amount of credit for his commendable work as coach.

VARSITY Tennis last year assumed its place among University athletics for the first time since 1918. Ben Cone was manager and arranged one inter-collegiate match with V. M. I. Carolina was represented by Jernigan, Barden and Williams in the singles and Barden and Gardner, and Williams and Wilson, in the doubles. The match was won by V. M. I. in that she won two of the three single matches and one of the two doubles.

Trinity was played in the early fall. Carolina lost this match also by losing three out of four singles, though she won one double and tied the other. A tournament was held during the fall to select a Captain of the '21 Varsity. Jernigan won this place. Another tournament to determine the members of the team will be held sometime later in the spring.

Manager Gardner has arranged an excellent schedule including state teams, as well as those from Virginia, V. M. I., and Washington and Lee.

GYM TEAM

THE Gymnasium appears to have come into its own again. Last year's record would indicate that this branch of college activity has fully recovered from the set back due to the war. The team consisted of six able athletes, and was conceded by many to be the best lately turned out.

The year opened with a marked shortage of trained material, as only three letter men were back, C. S. Coffey, C. P. Spruill, and P. P. Lynch. A host of aspirants frequented the floor every afternoon, and out of these there were four who succeeded in winning their monograms. They were: W. H. Butt, R. F. Marshburn, R. L. Ranson, and B. B. Wimberly.

The team first leapt into the limelight when the exhibitions staged by the members of the team during the intermissions of the basketball games in Bynum Gymnasium began to attract wide attention. So successful were they in these attractions that they prevailed upon them to give like exhibitions at Durham, and Oxford, and also to take an important part in the Society Circus at Raleigh.

Similar plans for the present year are under way, and the team, though somewhat weakened by graduations, and the unfortunate injury to one of its leading lights, Joe Person, has already been augmented by addition of two recruits, C. L. G. Ashby, and F. N. Dula, who were successful in the fall try-outs. There is also every indication that it will be further strengthened by subsequent additions during the spring.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL TEAM

Class Football 1920

CLASS Football this year definitely took its place as the major class sport. Each of the four classes put out live and snappy elevens, and the race for the championship was no dull affair. The Juniors, '22, who walked away with the rag last year, proved a distinct disappointment in their showing this year and did not win a single game. The Freshmen entered into the race with vigor, but were eliminated in the latter stages of the season by the Seniors and Sophs, between whom things stood even until the last contest of the season, which broke the deadlock with the Soph victory by one touchdown. Consequently the honors again rest with the Sophomore Class, but this time in the safe keeping of '23.

The Y. M. C. A.

THERE is always a third element uniting two others. The "Y" is the third element in the organism we call a University—a medium of exchange, a clearing house.

It brings President and student more closely together and enables them to do business more efficiently with each other.

It is the unity of town and campus, securing helpers for the various homes; holding the social function, where the people and the young men gather and learn to know each other; and finding recruits for the various civic programmes instituted by the community.

It is the unity of individual students, giving them an exchange of social values among themselves; electing them as officers, thereby placing responsibility in their hands; organizing them for Sunday school in the country and night school among the colored folk.

It is the unity of the student and his home, interpreting son to parent and parent to son.

It is the unity of the student and himself, helping him in his individual problems, watching over him with the affectionate care of an unobtrusive personal evangelism, relating him thoughtfully to the church and bringing him to see religion not as theory or convention but as life.

In this manner the Association has rendered a splendid service to the University and is growing daily into a larger usefulness.

Such unifying power in a community calls for an administrator who is of the spirit; and in its present secretary, Mr. C. W. Phillips, the institution has been most happy in such an official.

DRAMATICS

The aim of the Carolina Play-makers is to translate the Spirit of Carolina into plays representative of the life of the people.

—FREDERICK H. KOCH

The Carolina Playmakers

FREDERICK H. KOCH, Director

THE aim of the Carolina Playmakers is to build up a native literature in North Carolina drawn from the abundant store of tradition as well as from the life of the present day. No section of the United States affords a richer background for the making of native folk-plays.

Our Playmakers are striving to satisfy the craving of the people everywhere for a drama which will be genuinely communal—for a theatre democratic, which will adequately interpret their own times, giving to every man a means of expressing his own desire in creative play.

The Carolina Folk-Plays are written in English 31, the University course in Dramatic Composition. The characters are drawn from the playwright's observation—often from his actual experience. The productions are home-made. The stage equipment, lighting, scenery, settings and costumes are designed and executed by the Playmakers at Chapel Hill.

The plays thus far produced have revealed a wide range of material and forms. The first season presented an interesting variety: When Witches Ride, by Elizabeth Lay of Beaufort, a play of Carolina folk-superstition; The Return of Buck Gavin, by Thomas Wolfe of Asheville, a tragedy of a mountain outlaw; What Will Barbara Say? by Minnie Shepherd Sparrow, of Gaston County, a comedy of Chapel Hill life; The Fighting Corporal, by Louisa Reid of Gastonia, a comedy of negro life; and Peggy, by Harold Williamson of Carthage, a tragedy of the tenant farmer, presenting the hopeless condition of children bound to the soil.

The second year revealed new traditions and other picturesque characters appeared: The Third Night, by Thomas Wolfe of Asheville, a mountain play of the supernatural; The Hag, by Elizabeth Lay of Beaufort, a comedy of folk-superstition; Who Pays? by Minnie Shepherd Sparrow, of Gaston County, a tragedy of the present day industrial conflict in the South; Dod Cast Ye Both! by Hubert Heffner of Catawba County, a comedy of mountain moonshiners; The Bell Buoy, by Dougall MacMillan of Wilmington, a tragedy of the Carolina Coast; and The Last of the Lowries, by Paul Greene of Lillington, a play of the Croatan outlaws of Robeson County.

The first series of the plays this year has contributed new variety and character to the materials. The Miser, by Paul Greene of Lillington, is a farm tragedy; The Old Man of Edenton, by the same author, is a melodrama of the witchcraft times in North Carolina; and The Vamp, by William A. Royall of Goldsboro, is a comedy of college life at Chapel Hill.

The rapid development of the work has made necessary the establishment of a Playmakers Theatre Fund, to provide for equipment for new productions and for touring the State. Ultimately it is expected that this fund will grow to meet the need for a theatre building—not only to accommodate the audiences, but to furnish an adequate workshop for the construction of State equipment, and a store-room for scenery and properties. The net profits from all performances will be devoted to the building at Chapel Hill, as soon as practicable. Of a model Community Theatre, designed to serve as a producing center for the promotion of a native drama in North Carolina.

In their work the Carolina Playmakers are hoping to contribute permanent value to a new folk-literature.

The Bell Buoy

A Tragedy of the North Carolina Coast
by Dougald MacMillan

The Bell Buoy is based on the story of the finding of the lost portrait of Theodosia Burr.

The treacherous sand-banks off the North Carolina coast a hundred years ago were almost completely cut off from contact with the mainland, and many of the "bankers" became "land pirates" who lured vessels to the bank by the means of false lights, and then murdered the crew and plundered the ships as the pirates at sea had done before them.

In December of 1812, Theodosia Burr sailed on a small boat, The Patriot, from Georgetown, South Carolina, intending to visit her father, Aaron Burr, in New York. The Patriot was lost somewhere on this voyage, nor was any trace of ship or crew ever found.

About fifty years later a doctor, called in to see a sick woman on one of the sand-banks near Nag's Head, was surprised to find the portrait of a beautiful young woman hanging in the rude hut of the "banker," and obtained possession of it.

In the play, a storm is raging over the lonely sand-banks near Nag's Head, within the hut of the old fisherman the bell buoy can be heard above the roaring of the surf. The fisherman and his daughter are worried about the safety of the Old Woman who lives with them. She isn't "right in her head," and they're "scared o' what she'll do" when the storm makes her hear the strange voices which call to her. To the fisherman's hut comes a doctor, summoned to see the fisherman's wife. The doctor is surprised to find in the hut a portrait, which he is convinced is that of the lost Theodosia Burr. He offers to buy it, declaring that it must be the key to the mystery of the disappearance of Aaron Burr's daughter. At the mention of the name "Theodosia Burr," the demented Old Woman who has crept into the room, seizing the portrait declares that it is a picture of her, and reveals the fact that she herself was Theodosia Burr. When she has gone out, the doctor wrings from the "banker" the confession that this woman was rescued from a vessel wrecked long ago on the dunes by the land pirates. Just then a loud cry is heard above the roar of the surf, and the ringing of the bell buoy. The Old Woman has rushed into the surf with her picture and has been drowned.

"Dad Gast Ye Both"

A Comedy of Mountain Moonshiners by Hubert Heffner

"Dad Gast Ye Both" is a play of moonshiners operating in a remote section of the Carolina Mountains. It is a comedy of folk characters and portrays an interesting group of mountaineers typical of folk with whom the author is familiar.

Noah Setzer, a mountain moonshiner, "boss of the ridge," has always boasted that "they ain't no revenoore got him yit an' they ain't never gonna do hit." But he and his bootleggers are disturbed by the suspicion that Lawrence Abner is more than a harmless "stranger in these parts." They fear that he is a "revenoore" and has been paying attention to Noah's daughter, Mary, in order that he may capture the gang. Noah, in a towering rage, swears that he'll put a stop to this. "I'll take old beck over thar (pointing to his gun) an' I'll fix this here dodgasted, ding-fuzzled revenoore like I did tother'n. Then I'll take that gal o' mine. . . ." But he is interrupted here by a pistol shot as the "revenoore" enters with "the gal" and captures the whole gang. After much fuming, Noah is persuaded by his bootleggers to "give him the gal" in return for their freedom. When Noah explosively consents to this proposition with "Well, marry him . . . and damn ye both!" Abner and Mary burst out laughing. They explain that Abner is not a "revenoore" but a magazine scribbler, and the plot was stated to prove that he "wan't no revenoore" so that they could be married. Since Noah has promised before all his gang, he can't go back on his word. So he gives a reluctant consent that Abner shall marry Mary. Handing them a quart of his best "mountain dew," he fumes out his blessing. "Take this here quart and clear out o' here an' . . . stay out . . . an' dad gast ye both!"

The Last of the Lowries

A Play of Robeson County Outlaws by Paul Greene

The Last of the Lowries was drawn from the "Lowrie History," by Mrs. Norment, whose husband was killed by the outlaws.

The Lowrie gang was a famous band of outlaws of mixed blood, part Croatian Indian. In the latter part of the Civil War many of the Croatans in Robeson County were opposed to the conscription of men by the Confederate Government for work on the fortifications along the Cape Fear. Among these were the Lowrie boys, who killed an army officer sent to arrest them for evading the law. After this, the Lowries concealed themselves in Scuffletown swamp, where they were supplied with food by their sympathizers. As the gang grew in size it began to act on the offensive instead of the defensive and soon it spread terror throughout the county, robbing, plundering, and killing when necessary. For more than ten years the gang held out against the officers of the law and only in 1874 was the last Lowrie killed.

The parents of the Lowrie boys were, as far as is known, both law-abiding and religious people.

Cumba, the old mother of the Lowrie gang, has lost all her sons except Henry Berry. Steve has been killed only a week before but his wife, Mayno, and Cumba's daughter, Jane, have tried to keep this from the old woman. She believes them safe in Georgia, "living straight lives at last." But Henry Berry has lost heart and is overcome by the loneliness of the swamp. He comes back to see his old mother and to play his banjo once more before he gives up. Then, hearing signals outside, he leaves Cumba and Jane, saying "Steve's waitin' fer me ou' thar." His mother cries out in despair, "There he goes now. I'll never see him again. His spirit's broke, an' he won't be goin' back to Georgy. I see it in his face that he's a-givin' in." Then, just as she finds Steve's blood-stained clothes, comes the sound of a shot. Mayno runs in with Henry Berry's coat, telling how he shot himself before the Sheriff's gang could take him. And Cumba drops down over the clothes of her dead sons. "Thar's all that's left o' them I loved... a bundle of clothes to show for a husband, an' four grown sons... they're all at peace at last... but what's the use of my livin'... now?"

The Miser

A Tragedy of Farm Life by Paul Greene

Old Wash Lucas is known as the stingiest man in Harnett County. The only thing he ever loved was his son, Perry, whom he drove off with a curse seven years ago when he wanted to marry and move to the mills. His daughter, Ida, lives alone with him. Old Wash has been paralyzed since his quarrel with Perry, but he has power enough still to drive a hard bargain and to cheat Tim, once Ida's beau, out of all that he has saved. Tim comes to Ida now to tell her that Perry is starving, and that his wife will die unless money for a specialist is to be had at once. Ida declares that her father hates Perry, and that it is no use to try to get money from him. He has been driving another bargain with a man from the bank. Tim tells Ida that he has fixed it up with Josie to be married, and that they are planning to move to the mills. He says, "I thought a lot o' you, Ida, and I reckon we'd a'got on all right... but ten years is a long time to wait." Utterly without hope for the future, Ida resolves to get some money from Wash, and when Tim is gone she demands the key to the money-box. Goaded to desperation by Wash's taunts, she is about to kill him with a knife when he tells her that the money has been put in the Bank. Tim has just told her that the Bank had failed. Now when Perry comes in to beg his father for help and Wash finally consents, Ida knows that it is no use. Tim returns presently with the news that Perry's wife is dead and Wash, on hearing that his money is gone, himself sinks back in his wheel chair, dead. Just then is heard the sound of Christmas serenaders singing "Holy Night" and Ida cries out, "Thar's them young folks havin' a good time on Christmas Eve while we... while we..." And she sinks hopelessly into a chair as the full misery of the situation breaks over her.

The Vamp

A Comedy of Chapel Hill by William A. Royall

Mildred Mason, according to Fatty Armstrong, "good-lookin' as the devil," is a "baby-vamp" from Georgia. While at a fraternity dance on the Hill, with her soft voice, "wonderful eyes, kissable mouth, plenty of rouge, spit-curl and everything", she succeeds in vampming both students and professor. She willingly enters into a conspiracy to vamp poor Julius Young, a bashful Senior. But she does not stop there, for Professor Dobson, of the Economics Department, is vamped. Even sophisticated Fatty Armstrong who is certainly "big enough to take care of himself" falls an easy victim to her irresistible charms. The climax is reached, when like a bright butterfly, this "attractive little devil" flits away with "some guy in a new Stutz" to spread joy elsewhere, leaving her latest admirers without even one farewell smile.

The Old Man of Edenton

A Melodrama of Witchcraft Times by Paul Greene

Joe Jules, now old and feeble, once a strong and influential man in Edenton, has lived for ten years in such seclusion that he is suspected of having murdered his young wife and even of having sold his soul to the Devil. Hearing that a warrant has been issued for his arrest on a charge of having bewitched the Governor's daughter, the Old Man has summoned The Constable, The Notary, and a Minister of Edenton to hear his story. As their knock is heard he commands his slave, Mumbo, to help him up, pointing to the door beyond which strange moaning cries are heard. He speaks gently, "Yes, yes! A little while." Then to Mumbo, "I'm going down there to make ready." As he passes Mumbo's horrible African idol he says, "Cover him up if you don't want strangers to see your God." This is done and Mumbo opens the door to the three town dignitaries. Left alone to await the return of the Old Man they become thoroughly frightened by the moaning sounds, the gloom, the wind, and by recalling tales of the Old Man's murder of his young wife, and of his witchcraft. Finally the Constable, in his restlessness, comes upon Mumbo's idol, uncovers it, and in horror shoots at it. Mumbo, entering at this moment, springs upon him to avenge the injury done his god. But the Old Man restrains him. He now reveals to the frightened men the secret of his life. He calls in his wife that she may play once more on her spinet and reveals the terrible truth that she "for ten years has lived chained to keep her from killing herself." Tonight he has determined to end it all, and has called the town officers there that they may report how he lived ten years with a leper wife because of his love for her. According to his previously arranged plans, Mumbo sets fire to the house and the Old Man takes poison. But Mumbo, on account of the insult to his idol, refusing to obey his master, will not permit the officers from Edenton to escape from the house. The flames fill the room and above the moaning of the victims comes the clear, sweet tinkle of the spinet played by the leper wife of the Old Man of Edenton.

The 1920-'21 season of the Musical Clubs, formerly combined under the head of the Glee Club, has been by far the most successful that this organization has ever had from every aspect. The Clubs have taken two full-week tours throughout the State, together with various local engagements, during which concerts were rendered at the following places:

Fall Tour

Nov. 14	.	.	Raleigh
Nov. 16	.	.	Chapel Hill
Nov. 17	.	.	Charlotte
Nov. 18	.	.	Spartburg
Nov. 19	.	.	Salisbury
Nov. 20	.	.	Winston-Salem
Nov. 21	.	.	Greensboro

Spring Tour

Feb. 17	.	.	Durham
Feb. 21	.	.	Wilson
Feb. 22	.	.	Rocky Mount
Feb. 23	.	.	Tarboro
Feb. 24	.	.	Washington
Feb. 25	.	.	Kinston
Feb. 26	.	.	Goldsboro
Mar. 2	.	.	Chapel Hill

The program was live, varied, and complete, including chorus songs varying from the classical to negro spirituals; solos, classical, popular, and comical; quartet songs of every description, including the "caleiope four;" varied orchestral selections; and "jazz de luxe" by the Tar Baby Five. Newspaper comments throughout the State were unanimous in the expression that the program never failed to please the entire audience, and that the Clubs this year were the best that had ever represented the University—a credit to any institution.

GREAT SPEECH HEARD

Varsity basketball Manager, Joe Person, delivered an address Saturday night to the whole student body, which had assembled in the gymnasium for the purpose of hearing him speak. Manager Person is one of the few really influential and brainy men on the campus, and he has the rare good fortune of knowing this fact himself. Besides these mental and social graces he is one of the South's leading Gym men, holding among other honors the World's Collegiate record for standing on his head. His only rival in this line was Theo, the Thug, the great Whatisit, whose endurance capacity in this line puzzled medical men the nation over, and who was dissected upon his death to determine the cause of his miraculous power.

FRONEBERGER FALLS

Adolphus X. Froneberger, the pride of Carr-Barn, has returned to the Hill after a week's sojourn in the great metropolis of University station. He brings back a tale of persecution and prosecution at the hands of the slick city folks. It seems that in the heart of this roaring vertex of humanity there dwelt a maiden whose fair form and face but barely cloaked a vampish soul of sin. One day she observed young Frondy walking the streets and noted his rustic look and also his roll. She dropped her hankerchief. Our hero gracefully returned it to her with a gentlemanly bow. He gazed into those cruel fascinating eyes. He was a ruined man.

Broken in heart and finances he stumbled back the railroad track to Carrboro. The world was cold and cruel. The birds did not sing in the high tree tops any longer. She had lured him into an ice-cream parlor and he had spent his last cent buying her nut Sundaes. When the last cent of his fortune had slipped into the cash register she gave him the cold shoulder and went out on the street to find another victim. Her husband ran the shop.

FAREWELL FEAST HELD

Smith Building Monday afternoon was the scene of a farewell banquet to Candidate Moore, the great politician, just before his departure into the cold, cruel world. S. M. Turner, erstwhile his deadly enemy in campus politics, forgot the old feud for the time being and in one of his well-known orations gushed forth the virtues of the Candidate with tears starting from his eyes. It was an emotional moment. Hardened sinners wept silently on their shirt tails, while life-long teetotalers bellowed for strong drink.

After the speaking a banquet was held on the third floor of Smith Building. The first course consisted of hard-tack and corn whiskey. Delicious onion sandwiches followed accompanied by Brown's Mule Chewing Tobacco, and the dinner was completed by Pre-Di punch served in old hair-tonic bottles to give it a distinctive flavor. One Eleven cigarettes were handed around and an enjoyable smoker was held.

After the feast Ed. Meisenheimer, as toast-master, called upon several of the notables present for short talks on timely subjects. Charlie Phillips elucidated for fifteen minutes on the gentle art of Moonshining; Yegods McMichael, the hero of the A. E. F., gave a lecture entitled: "And two more Germans bit the dust," or "Half-Shot." Reece Berryhill spoke shortly on "The Mysterious Red-headed Bootlegger". Dan Grant ended the informal discussion by an insight into the matter of drawing to inside straights.

The denizens of Smith then accompanied the candidate to Carrboro en masse. En route Alec Miller gave several inspiring selections on trombone. Just before

THE READ 'EM 'N' WEPT

W. Reece Berryhill, Tyre C. Taylor and D. Dice Daniels are taking their meals in the village lock-up at present as the results of a raid by Jug Whitaker, the local sleuth, upon the basement of the Baptist Church. They were all caught red-handed in an interesting game of Carrboro tiddie-de-winks and were sentenced to thirty days in the city pound. Yegods McMichael is taking Berryhill's place on the student council until his release.

The details of the capture are the most thrilling in the annals of the local police force. It seems that for several weeks they had been enjoying and profiting by the company of John Kerr, who at last was driven to the wall by constant losses and forced to give them a worthless check. As a result of this Berryhill had him called before the student council and he was given one more chance to win the money back or to go to jail. He accepted the proffered chance and the student council adjourned to the basement of the Baptist Church. The bones were produced. Berryhill seized the ivories. He crapped. Tyre Taylor crapped. Daniels made two passes and then crapped. Kerr grabbed the dominos. With expert hand he rolled seven after eleven 'til even the redoubtable Daniels blushed for his skill. Soon Berryhill and Taylor began to grow short of change. Kerr comes out with "Little Joe" and Berryhill throws his shoes in the pot. Kerr rolls "Little Joe" and grabs the shoes. Thirty minutes later Kerr's opponents all needed barrels. It was at this juncture that the famous sleuth put in his appearance accompanied by Oscar the Ethiopian Herring Hound. Kerr escaped but the other gentlemen could not and were captured.

EDITORIAL

When I first saw with startled and incredulous eye that outburst of boyish glee, which was directed at the Carolina Haymakers, I immediately attributed it to the constant inbibing of the corn when it is white, which is a method used today and yesterday by all manner of geniuses to obtain a kind of an inspired style. It certainly inspired this young fellow's style. I sympathize with him as I do with every struggling young journalist and at various points in his career I have tried to give him some constructive criticism. He really ought to do the bulk of his writing between the third and fourth drinks and not wait for the inspiration of the seventh weary drink that has wended its way into his pickled system.

The last outburst of his, however, which is to be read in this issue, is a more serious thing, and the learned man by reading between the lines can see where our young hopeful has forsaken the white and beaded fluid for Predigested Beef Juice and Ed. Pinaud's Lilac de France. His violent threats and ragings are suggestive of Bay Rum. Its effect on the infant intellect can be plainly seen.

It is to be trusted that in the future he will confine himself to the orthodox substance and be more moderate in his use of the same. Doing this and applying himself with diligence some fourteen or fifteen hours per day to the study of Journalism at the end of twenty or thirty years he should be practically able to hold an apprentice position as cub-reporter on the Chapel Hill News.

DESIRE FOR CHANGE
ENVELOPES CAROLINA

Old Regime Doomed

The Old Regime must go! By the Old Regime we mean everything. Now that we have decided, let's consider. Too many years the campus has struggled under the minions of Capital. Charlie Woolen must go, No, he musn't go. He must hang. Yes, hang to the highest limb of the old Davie Poplar. J. A. Warren must die also. Frank Graham's death sentence has already been passed. He, too, is a conservative. Jiminy Bell and Smithey are doomed. To the block with Billy Noble! Daggett shall be electrocuted. Lear shall follow likewise. All the faculty must perish. Only Prof. Green shall live. When he has blotted all out we shall bring in nothing short of the real warm stuff to teach young Carolina, and have De Red Hodgin head of the philosophy department.

CRITIC DEFENDS HIS CRITISMS

Issues Challenge

All those who criticised my criticisms of the Carolina Playmakers are none other but an ignorant bunch of hypocritical parasites. After carefully questioning all the really great literary lights of the campus in regard to the merits of my criticism, I am now able to state truthfully and modestly that it is the best article that has ever appeared in the Tar Heel. J. W. Turnage, the great literary critic of the Freshman class and future Vice-President of the Booloo club, said so himself.

Only those whose taste for good dramatics has been drugged and blunted to insensibility by the maudlin sop thrown out at the Pickwick can fail to see the utter absurdity of the whole affair.

J. Holly Hanford, seeks for personal ends to discredit my blushing art. To him and all other corrupters of innocent merit I issue the following challenge to see whether they are men of determination or if they have a yellow streak: Shotguns, at three paces on the stadium at midnight! 'Tis thus the true artist ever avenges his art.

POTTER'S FIELD
TOPICS

By LONG BILL JONES

Miss Castoria Jenkins Saturday morning at six-thirty became the blushing bride of Mr. Booker T. Lincoln, prominent society man of Potter's Field. The service was performed by the Right Reverend Augustus G. Jabbo, pastor of the 27th church of the Holy Rollers Somnombulant. The bride wore a suede dejeuner trimmed with mink de mere and carried a large bouquet of dandelions. After the ceremony the couple left for an extended bridal tour of Carrboro and other foreign ports.

E. Clyde Hunt, student attending the University of North Carolina, was captured in Carrboro the other night and charged with being a Democrat. He was hailed before the Justice of the Peace and given his choice between signing the pledge and lynching. After three attempts at suicide he was finally released on account of being non compres mentis.

Charles G. Koniac is on an extended business trip to Northern cities for his uncle Arsenie L. Koniac, whose still was captured Thursday.

D. T. Redeye has 'em again. This time they are pink with green stripes.

Great Speech Heard

No brain was found. However, we are sure that this is not the case with Joe Person. In addition to all of these accomplishments he is a man of unusual personal beauty, being in the opinion of all the most handsome man in Chapel Hill.

In his farewell address he reiterated the fact that we all were present, that the sky was blue, that the girls were beautiful, that the gentlemen were not to be allowed to sit on the front seat, and incidentally that Carolina would play the University of Virginia in the Gym shortly.

Having heard this speech, Carolina could do no other than lick Virginia 43 to 12.

STOP! LOOK! AND COME IN! IT PAYS TO TRADE AT FOISTER'S

embarking on the dinkey the exile turned and made what was probably his last speech in the neighborhood of Chapel Hill. "Fellow-sufferers", he said, "I must now lay bare the dark secret reason why I am shaking the dust of your fair village forever from my brogans. Turner and I, realizing that the campus was too small a place to hold two such notables, decided early in the Fall term that the one of us who made the low grades was to leave forever, never to return. Turner received two fives and a six, (I suspect him of bribing T. J.), while I only received two sixes and a five". Thus another master mind flitted into the great unknown.

CONQUERING HERO COMES BACK HOME

Yegods McMichael Given Big Reception

Today Carolina welcomed back to her bosom one of her sons who for years has been facing the foe in far-off France. Returned now safe and sound with honor and glory Yegods McMichael was given a fitting reception by the University. Promptly at four-thirty this afternoon the parade formed in front of the Post Office, headed by the great University band personally conducted by John Paul Weaver himself. Immediately behind the band drove a brand new Rolls-Royce, bought especially for the occasion, in which were seated, Yegods McMichael, Harry Chase, William Jennings Bryan, and Josephus Daniels. Gayly decorated automobiles and floats followed, each float bearing a scene representing one of the modest youth's exploits in France. The floats extended all the way from the Post Office to the mid-way bridge. They were two hours and thirty minutes passing the reviewing stand. Behind them came the R. O. T. C.

After he had been presented to the entire student body in Memorial Hall, the blushing hero spoke for a matter of five hours or so on his experiences in the army and the proper way to run the government.

Reporters from all the leading papers in the country were present to cover his speech.

LOVERS OF MUSIC HEAR NOTED PLAYER

Bringing his audience time and again to their feet, Turner Finger, the extraordinary guitarist, brought down the house in Gerrard Hall last night. The concert was given under the auspices of the Commission for the relief of starving Poles, of which Mr. Finger is one. All kinds of presents were bestowed upon him at the concert, including three fine heads of cabbage, one large cucumber and many dozens of fine old eggs, which however although besides were delivered in an unfortunate manner and reached their destination intact but did not remain so long after getting there.

Young Finger can play almost anything on a guitar, among which are "Casey Jones" and "Over There". He rarely ever strikes a false note; that is to say, he gets the majority of them right. He has a great future before him if he ever lives down his past.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB HAS FREE FOR ALL FIGHT

Heffner and Daniels Produce Storm Center

The philosophy club met Sunday afternoon in its weekly session, upon which occasion Charles Boyd introduced the following topic for hash: Can a man's better self rise above himself? Immediately upon the topic's being stated, Mr. B. C. Brown, eminent member, took the floor and made an impassioned address to the effect that a man's better self could do such thing.

"The Kingdom of God is within", shouted Brown. "I say to you that man is a transcendent animal, so is his better self". The speaker looked toward the floor thoughtfully and sorrowfully. "Now I don't know whether you gentlemen think I am serious about this or not, but I am—I am as serious as it is possible for one of my nature to be".

Following Mr. Brown, Mr. Dice Daniels took the floor. He was of the opinion that such was not the case; that a man's better self could not rise above himself. That man is essentially bound to the flesh, to the earthy, to the world. Dice became quite absorbed in his subject and made two or three statements not altogether complimentary to those who might differ from his views.

Next Mr. John Terry took a great portion of the floor and painted out an opinion. Mr. Terry was of the opinion that both the gentlemen who had preceded him were wrong. Terry called on D. Red Hodgin to hand down an opinion; but D. Red said he was not prepared to make an asseveration at that time, but that he was thoroughly in favor of change, if that had any bearing on the subject. Mr. Hubert Heffner rose and said that that did not have any bearing on the subject; that Hodgin was a Bolshevik. Hodgin replied by charging that Heffner was an agnostic, to which Heffner answered yes, and that he was proud of the fact; that it was a broadminded view.

P. Greene then took his feet to defend his good friend, Hubert. Dice Daniels came to his feet again and reminded the club that the subject was one hardly fit for their deep cogitation. 'Twas a tense moment. Dice uttered words that Hubert could not brook and retain any semblance of self respect. Hubert replied with more desperate charges. There was personal questioning. Then Dice yelled:

"Ye Yokels, I propose that we suspend the constitution and settle this question in a manly fashion". He punctuated his suggestion with dealing Brown a mighty clout on the occiput with a chair. Brown licked dust of weeks from the floor and groaned. The fight was on.

Good friends glared malevolently at one another and swore like men. Men of philosophical penchant called on their gods to defend them from the wrath of Dice. The moment was too much for mere man and Heffner pulled a flying tackle and brought Dice to the mat. He fastened a scissors around Dice's manly neck and that pain-ridden youth yelled in rage, vituperating Heffner in two languages.

At this juncture Charles Boyd became convulsed with laughter and rolled from his chair shaking with mirth. Willie Horner entered the door just in time to see Hodgin take a fall out of Brown, who was just rising from the effect of Dice's wallop. Horner pinned Hodgin to the wall and clawed for his eyes. Hodgin was beside himself with livid fury and sputtered in no way becoming to a philosopher, at being thus assailed by so insignificant a yokel. Yegods McMichael, a visitor at the meeting, made a desperate dash for freedom, but found his precipitate try for the door blocked by P. Greene, who was choking with anger but managed to say that no man was going to escape the terrible consequences of his wrath like that; that he did not know who Yegods was, but that he too must answer for being in attendance on such a discussion. Yegods ruddy cheek became pallid and he begged Green's good will like a true sufferer. He pleaded that he was not at heart a philosopher; that the present was his first offense of that kind; that he had never done any creature any harm; that he had great plans which such a mighty conflict would imperial—but Greene was obdurate and handed Yegods a fair left to the kisser.

Yegods yelled in mingled pain and rage and went to the mat with Greene, fighting valiantly. Greene tried his best to produce another tragedy.

At this point Dice had succeeded in breaking the terrible scissors that Hubert had been holding on his neck while they fought. Dice rose like one drunk on home brew and dashed through the door, not taking time to open it and taking panels with him. The noise of the crash was more than John Terry's makeup could stand and he crawled from his painful position beneath the table and took the window at a single bound. The glass crashed as John hurled his three hundred pounds avoirdupois against it. It so happened that Dice was just rounding the corner as John came to earth. Right here was the single serious accident of the fray. John landed on Dice. John is in the Infirmary suffering from three kinds of concussions and two sprained ankles.

The fury of the meeting burned itself out after several minutes of action. Some members departed in haste as they were able to disentangle themselves from the mass. Others limped off with visages contorted. All are expected to be in trim for the next meeting at which time the subject for discussion will be: Is Chapel Hill a suitable spot for a philosopher to flourish and will Swine Hall lend itself to true Epicureanism?

REPORTER INTERVIEWS BERRYHILL FOR TAR HELL

Fanned onward by a gentle evening breeze, learned Lipsius, the dear little cub-reporter, this afternoon condescended to interview a few of the Senior superlatives for the Tar Hell. The Editor-in-Chief wishes to take this opportunity to thank him for his kindness. Interviews follow below.

With mingled awe and admiration I approached the door of Walter Reece Berryhill, who is the one and only great "I AM" of the campus. Timidly I knocked on his door and expected to be rudely ordered away. On the contrary it was opened by a kindly old gentleman with a pair of horn rimmed eyeglasses and an inspired breath.

"Come in" he said, "Berryhill is waiting on you". I went forward and shook hands with the celebrity. "You are from the Tar Hell, doubtless?" asked Berryhill. I nodded. "Then you will be in a position to give us a little publicity doubtless?" I didn't doubt it. "Well", he said, "if you will guarantee the publicity I will guarantee the interview". I guaranteed it. The interview will appear after the Spring elections. "Berry" is the best all round and the best egg. I don't see how he beat John Terry for the first named position, but it is easy to see how he got elected to the last after having had close acquaintance with the good old Swain Hall eggs.

J. L. Cook was my next victim. I found him in his study, studying himself to death by studying. He is the most studious student in the Senior Class. He learned to read when he was six months old and by the time he was three could speak seven languages including profane. However he does not let his studies interfere with his athletics and plays an exceptional hand of poker.

"Runt" Lowe, the athletic bull, also began specializing early in his career. They had to put him in a straight-jacket before he was out of the cradle and they say he cut his teeth on a broken bottle. Notwithstanding these features he is an exceptionally bright young fellow and writes articles for the magazine.

The most energetic and popular man in the Senior Class is of course "Scrubby" Rives. He displays a great deal of energy leading cheers at the games and in getting to dinner on time. He believes in the efficacy of prayer, in drawing to inside straights and in standing Ace-high with the ladies.

Legette Blythe got elected the best writer in the Senior Class. It is a good thing for him D. Red Hodgin, one of poets of passion, wasn't a Senior.

Dan Grant beat P. Hettleman out for the best business man, but P' says, "I should worry. Who garners the most shekels."

Bill Bobbitt is the big noise around this place. The best debater and the best orator in his class he is still discontented because he was not elected pretiest. For William is ambitious. No star is too high for him to hitch his wagon to. He is going to be President of the United States some day. He admits it himself.

John Kerr is the most dignified politician in the Class of Twenty-One. He wields the clique. They are his soul and body. However John is a pretty honest sort of a politician and never resorts to anything lower than blackmail or bribery. He is a success at his business too, for he defeated the powerful machine which John Shaw had spent all his college days in building to elect himself to that office.

The writer found Will Ruffin busy powdering his nose for the dance that night at which he was to be guest of honor. Will is one of our handsome boys and promises to eclipse Cleopatra some day. He also found Bill busily engaged in mending cameras and engaging in a running argument with Hubert Heffner over the merits of the latter for the position which he holds.

Roger Ogburn was at work on his newest invention which is to do away with all forms of machinery when it is perfected. Roger was elected the most original member of his class because he passed German Three under Dr. Kent Brown.

I started to go to see Miss Hughes to interview her, but lost my nerve before I got to the door and so the song of her beauty is lost to an eager student body. The truth might as well be stated here though that she was not really elected. That "Puss" Hooker was elected, but that one of the vote-counters who was struck by her beauty tore up all his ballots.

I found Rufus Hunter doing a few fancy dance steps before the looking glass. Rufus came here originally from Wake Forest, from whence he was shipped for toddling. Needless to say he is the best dancer in the class with the possible exception of W. H. Shine.

Tyre C. Taylor holds the reputation of being the witty guy. He always has a nifty come-back to all the old bites and is the fellow who invented the joke about the Ford automobile. He is the editor of the Carolina magazine and the twenty men who read that publication all swear he is nothing short of the real warm stuff. I don't know about that, never having been reckless enough of my soul to read said magazine.

The last person I saw on my wanderings was Red Robbins. Red is said to be lazy. I couldn't find anything much about his lazy habits except that he goes to bed with his shoes on.

Anybody's Opportunity

In a few days the regular elections will be staged. In short, the regular spring politicking is about to begin. All those who would be successful, harken to the following words, for they flow from the pen of one experienced in the above-named art, and proficient in the schemes that are to follow. You must have the regular midnight sessions, make individual canvasses, and pledge supports. Study the faces in the latest YACKETY YACK with care, and be sure to learn the first name and nickname of every man in the catalogue. Don't forget to appeal to the regular number of prejudices, to tell the regular number of lies—without evil intent, of course—and do not mind how many scars you leave behind to remind men in after years of the measures taken to elect or defeat them by their fellow classmates.

Men must be spoken to and called by name who before have passed unnoticed; you must pat men on the back who until now have remained unpatted. Make it a point to see that the business of the drug stores picks up—go to the extreme and feed the voters so that they will go away rejoicing and swearing that they have been treated royally. They will remember it on election day. Fraternity men should become seized with an attachment for democratic principles and be happy to mingle with the proletariat. If you can find enough people to fall for it, try the steam-roller method. However, it is best to try all of the above named methods if you would be successful, for they have been tried every year with success.—The Editor.

The True Renaissance

(Being a fragment stolen from the unread pages of the future. The date is 5021. The theme is: Dr.

Mythians, world renowned Philologist, has come down to the site of ancient Chapel

Hill to give a series of lectures to a group of advanced students.)

Ladies and Gentlemen:—It gives me a peculiar and unique pleasure to talk to you at this time on the True Renaissance. Three thousand one hundred years ago there flourished on this spot a band of writers and singers than which the world has witnessed no mightier. On the spot that is now covered by the walls of Alislost University, there stood in 1921 the envied and noble walls of the University of North Carolina. Within these walls flourished in all his splendor, Jonathan Daniels, the right follower of Anacheron, Sappho, and probably Burns, in the line of succession of the poets of passion! Here also lived and wrote P. Greene, who had such a varied career on Broadway, the New York center of frolic, who eclipsed one Shakespere of the Avon! Here also lived and loved and died the amorous writer of plays and painter of life, Hefiner, whose life was one great succession of love that was fire and who put it all in those ninety folios of works so well known to you. There are others but they will be taken up in turn.

Daniels, whose boundless spirit still lives on this spot, wrote of love. No whit smaller than Sappho's was his ardor and his passion. Witness these lines from one of his most original and blankest verses:

"Dark hair and white skin.
A Catholic Service.
Dark circled eyes.
Old enamels.
Luxury.
Love."

THE NEW CAROLINA MAGAZINE

What could be imagined more strikingly sincere, more truly of life, than those lines that blazен the author's name in the annals of literature with rubies that will never fade? The lines are from his great piece of blank verse, "Flesh Pots". Another bit of pure passion in a wilderness of ashes is this; it is from his "I see, Love, in Your Wonder Hair":

"My dearest one, your hair's soft silk
Is like an ancient lover's lilt
Who playing for his love at night
Sings all for love and love's delight.
So let me dream your hair for me
Was spun by fairies joyously".

There are two other stanzas to this gem, but you can read them for yourselves. They are nothing short of the real, warm article. Yes, Daniels belongs with that select coterie of Anachoron, Sappho and Burns, with the last named running hard to keep up. Justly has he gained for himself the name: Sweet bard of Purefoy's Creek.

And then comes Heffner who loved so, who wrote so, who died so. Abellard had his Eloise, Dante his, Beatrice, Petrarch his Laura, and Heffner his Rosalind. And he wrote of her as no other woman was ever written of; wrote of her in his sweet, new style. His works have survived the ages, as well they should have. He stood high in an age when men stood high around him. He would have been a solitary luminary in any age but his, his age which gave life to such figures as Greene, Daniels, Hodgin, and that great reformer and philosopher, Horner. Their race was not to gain a place beside the great figures that had gone before nor to strive for a place by those to follow, but to assure themselves of the final resting place for centuries to come beside their magnificent contemporaries. And they all stand there, alone in their eminence, unapproached by the generations on either side, lonely in their greatness. Ah, 3100 years ago there lived men! Men who made a true Renaissance, one such that it makes that of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries look like a lull in the world's advancement, a pause in thought. How these breezes that play now in the tree tops that have risen from the dust of so noble a race, whisper to me to-night of those spirits that still hover here! How young students of so noble a band of predecessors are blessed by such a heritage!

And now we come to Hodgin. Hodgin, that mighty name that has rolled down the centuries like some vast mountain of thought. And his name also holds the mantle of poetry. It is still a source of conjecture to those who have gone deep into the life of this golden age whether or not he was crossed in hopeless love. Take these for study:

"Nought in a name?" came from the youth—
"That's older than the hills!"
But tell me why, when I hear Her name,
My heart with rapture thrills?"

This is cited by those who contend that this new Demosthenes, who has hurled his thunderbolts down through one and thirty centuries, was so crossed, while there is a school who contend that he never knew the rapturous delights of great love as did Daniels and Hefner. They point to this bit which is from a poem published in the same glorious time of his greatness:

"Oh! how I love the girls!
Pinch toes and golden curls—
And all between!
One that is almost grown,—
I want one all my own,
Oh! hear my sad, sad moan,
I want a girl!"

Now young students, we see here very telling evidence of two distinct imports. It is rather for me to give them to you for your own consideration than to tell you what I think; but if you ask me what I do think, I shall say that my researches in this field have revealed this: The last quoted bit was published in the issue of the New Carolina Magazine for November, 1920, while the first quoted appeared in the same publication for February, 1921. This would suggest that in November he had not yet found a girl, but that by February following, he had found his great love, and his soul had burst into song, yea, into everlasting song, song that rivals even the impassioned verse of Daniels himself.

And not only has Hodgin sung for the ages, but he has spoken down with the tongue of ages, he has told men how to live, have told them in words of fire that they are paying tribute to the shrine of sham. The world has moved apace since Daniels sang and Hodgin roared with his message to men, but it has followed the train pointed to by this Luther of his age. Hodgin now sleeps in a peace that came at last, but it must do his soul good to see that men have heard his message aright.

And so, youth that lives in the shadows of the mighty, yours in an enviable heritage. Look back through those one and thirty centuries at the boundless dreams of those men and fit yourselves to bear the torch. Carry on. Show yourselves worthy of such pioneers. Take up their message and their song and shout them to the generations to come * * *. To-morrow we shall take up some of the works of these masters in detail. Go in peace * * *

A Review of Noteworthy Books on the Campus

THERE have appeared recently on the campus quite a number of really big books from the pens of local authors. It is very gratifying to note the excellence of the productions of the local writers, and there is all the evidence in the world that we have the Renaissance right here with us. There is no doubt but that future ages will look back at us with reverential awe and point not to the sixteenth century, but to the twentieth as the great age of rebirth. They will look at us with the perspective of thousands of years and the names of some of our chosen singers of song and writers of romance will stand out as beacon lights along the glittering trail that literature has broken throughout the ages.

Prominent among the books that have appeared recently is the masterly and exhaustive treatise of polities by Mr. John Duncan Shaw entitled "What College Polities Will Do For You". Shaw has given a life to the study and experience of this subject and his efforts have yielded abundant proof thereof. The introduction was written by Mr. Tyre C. Taylor, a man no less fitted than the author himself. They are both at their best in this book, and we find them revelling in their favorite field. In the introduction Mr. Taylor alternates in mood from the joocular to the sarcastic, while Mr. Shaw holds a rigid sedateness throughout the book. Quite an addition to the political works of the year.

Another book that everybody is reading at this time is Dr. J. Holly Hanford's scholarly treatise entitled, "When Milton Winks His Eye". This is easily the most original and interesting addition to the Miltonian letters of the last sixteen years. Dr. Hanford holds a facetious pen for the first part of the ordeal but when he begins to expatiate on Paradise Lost, the pressure gets too high and you can literally hear him snoring between the lines. He devotes two hundred pages to a sprightly discussion of whether the old Puritan winked his right eye exclusively or whether we was wont to alternate it with his good left. He finally comes to the conclusion that he doesn't know, due to the utter improbability of fragmentary evidence. It will be recalled that Dr. I. G. Long, surmised "Slick" by the Literati, came to about the same conclusion in his monumental works of the subject which appeared about a year ago. Dr. Long is no insignificant scholar in this field, and when he speaks we all wake up. Now Long came to one conclusion that Hanford contests in his present treatise; namely, that there is sufficient evidence to prove that Milton was crossed-eyed and that this being so, it is a tenable view to say that he often winked his left eye when he thought he was winking his right. Dr. Hanford scores this point quite sharply by quoting the entire poem of Il Perseroso. Dr. Long also made the point that John wore a mask, pointing to the appearance of this word directly after one of his titles, namely, "Comus". Dr. Long argues that this is really of an autobiographical nature and should be read: "Comb us, but first remove our masks". Dr. Hanford frankly admits that he is at sea on this point, but will not make such an admission about his other points.

We have had quite a number of plays of the first order during the past few months; shining among these is Dr. Fred Koch's satirical drama entitled, "Raleigh, He Spit on The Ocean". This is a brilliant work and portrays the spirit of Raleigh admirably. The theme of the drama is this: Raleigh, a handsome busk courting outrageously with the Queen, falls in love with a bright-eyed lady in waiting. He shifts his love making, but the cunning queen learns of it and has him sent to Ireland to learn a lesson in ruling at home, whereupon Raleigh becomes so exasperated that he spits on the Atlantic Ocean to show his exceeding wrath at the gods. The drama as a whole is probably more designed to catch the favorable eye of the newspapers than to add to the historical field in anyway. But the newsboys were right good to it. One of them wrote a review for it and he gave the author great laud for his highly dramatic ending in which Sir Raleigh comes out on the front stage and elenching his fists says: "And so to show my wrath to the gods, I will spit great mouthfuls of gool old Virginia tobacco juice all over the ocean!" A skilfully handled scene.

Dr. Hubert Heffner's latest play, "Dod Gaste The World", has proven an excellent sequel to his first play in which only two were gasted. It is a gigantic propaganda play in which two major tenets are made dynamic. The first is this: the utter instability of human endeavor; the second, since there is sin in the world, down with the world. Dr. Heffner finally works around to his climax in which he shows graphically that the world should be gasted by having his characters all shooting at the moon with a pop-gum. Other plays from his pen are: "How Much Money Is A Handful of Dimes?"; "The Cedar Bird's Mate"; "The Whichness Of Thus"; and a few others.

Mr. D. Red Hodgin has placed on the market a beautifully bound volume of verse. Mr. Hodgin chose as his opening ode, a few lines inscribed to Spring, entitled: "Ah, Spring, I Hear You Come On Scented Wing". Another which has attracted my attention is, "I Want A Girl". Mr. Hodgin shows a marvelous faculty of saying nothing in a whole lot of words. It is great poetry; you can read it all day without so much as a single thought. It never harmed anyone and never will. He has mastered the style of blank verse and has gone a long way toward proficiency in the free variety.

New Movement Very Favorable At This Time

John Terry Meets John Washburn at Carrboro and Spills News

John Washburn is just back from five years in orient. He was met at Carrboro by John Terry, who told him of the progress of the great movement which was started on the campus in 1921. Following is an account of the meeting between the two Johns as covered by a News-letter reporter.

The Carrboro limited rolled in amid a swirl of dust and cinders. The anxious face of the seasoned conductor peered from the platform as the limited came to a standstill. John Washburn, standing at his elbow, asked him if the train was indeed standing still and if it were safe to alight. The conductor assured him that it was. John stepped off and was hailed by John Terry. "Hello, John, so you are still here?" said Washburn.

Terry moved toward him, larding the lean earth as he walked along. "Greetings, John," he panted. "Yes; I'm still here. I have seven more courses to get off before I have credit for everything in the catalogue."

"I'm certainly glad to see an old face," Washburn smiled. "Tell me, what has happened since I left?"

The two gentlemen fell into step and began looking for a hack.

"Well, you remember the great movement started back in 1921? Yes; well, it is coming along wonderfully. They have a committee at work now getting some of the best men in the country to come over and help us. Turner is chairman of the committee. And say, Turner is the stuff. Up to date they have been able to get acceptances from many notables, including such men as Hoover and Gene Debs." Mr. Terry paused and breathed a bit before continuing.

"Yes; Hoover has been obtained as head waiter at Swine Hall. He is already on the hill and has some men at work cleaning the knives and forks. Gene Debs has promised to come up and take charge of the sociology department as soon as he has finished a previous contract in Atlanta. Irvin S. Cobb is going to have the chair of English; he has already given a large order, thru the book exchange, for Blum's Almanac. He is going to give a seminar in Blum's this winter, for which course I am registered up. Turner himself is offering a splendid course in folk play writing. I'm taking it.

"We have been very fortunate in getting Admiral Sims to take command of the swimming pool in the gym. He is installing a new system of showers. General Pershing now has charge of the R. O. T. C. He has two full squads of freshmen and drills them eight hours daily. Theda Bara is Kenan Professor of welfare working. She has added life to the campus. Jeannette Rankin is dean of co-eds. Trotsky is professor of education, with D. Red Hodgin as assistant. Willie Horney is official campus statistician. Connie Mack is head coach of baseball. Einstein is head of the math department. W. B. Wilson has taken George Pickard's place.

"We are especially proud of the great things being done at the Pick. Doug Fairbanks is taking up tickets while Mary Pickford is making a great hit at the ticket window. Fatty Arbuckle is usher; he also fans ladies who have fainted when they get het up during a tense moment of the picture. Bebe Daniels plays the piano; she's the honest of the campus. You must hear her play: 'Oh, do be a Daddy to me'.

"Now, in the administration we have Lamine for dean of students. Ole man Bradstreet himself is registrar. McAdoo has Warren's old job and he certainly handles the shekels to the queen's taste. Of course you know that Woodrow Wilson is president. The administration is working in complete harmony with the campus; the only case of discord to present was when old man Bradstreet jumped on Herbert Hoover for serving sour soup at Swine three times on Sunday.

"Thomas A. Edison is in charge of the electrical engineering department. Another great improvement over the old system is the election of Yegods McMichael as permanent president of the student council. He has held this post for two years now and has acquitted himself with glory. He tried to ship Fatty Arbuckle for conduct unbecoming a Carolina man the other day; but Fatty pled that one of the boys had sprinkled some home brew on his shirt from while he was looking the other way and that he was not himself while he was running amuck. Yegods let him off with Fatty's telling him who the man who had had the home brew was.

"The firm of Grosset and Dunlap has taken over the book exchange. Robert W. Chambers is teaching philosophy. W. J. Bryan is teaching public speaking. H. G. Wells is holding down the job of professor of history. He has been on the hill for three weeks and has been in a mammoth bull session with Archibald Henderson for the entire time. William H. Taft is dean of the law school. Old man Grandgent is head of the Romance Languages department. Ibanez is having a great time teaching Spanish, being ably assisted by Prof. Green. Albert S. Burleson has been appointed postmaster. Fairfax Harrison is station agent at Carrboro.

"Theda Bara has already begun a splendid lab course for her welfare workers. She has divided the dormitories up into districts and two workers are placed in charge of each of the districts. One dorm constitutes a district. Prof. Bara is very well pleased with the progress. Lilian Russell is teaching domestic science. Paderewski is head of the music department. Hiram Johnson is Kenan Professor of political science. Tom Watson holds the chair of rural sociology. Yes; we are doing great things".

John Terry has lost two pounds in the last month; however, he hopes to gain them back as he has changed boarding houses.

Hiram Johnson was caught operating a home brew plant in his kitchen last week. Yegods McMichael has Hungry Hi's case under consideration. He will probably be put on probation.

Prof. Bara was advised to add a little length to her skirt by the co-ed club a few days ago.

Dear Pa:

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
Sept. 22, 1920.

Well here I am safe and sound at last and I didn't let any of those slick city guys in Raleigh skin me either. I come mighty nigh losing my way though and I don't know what I would of done if they hadn't been another feller up here in the Union Depot what was going to Chapel Hill too and had already been there before and knew the way. He said he was Soph. O. Moore. I asked him was he any kin to old man Zeke Moore what runs the grist mill down the crik a piece below Salter's store. He said he wont, but I think maybe he must be one of his cousins or sumpthin bekawse he sure does resemble him. Kinda short, slender, red-headed little feller with a mean look in his left eye. He had a room up to Chapel Hill last year and he is going to sell me a fine almost brand new radiator cheap. There was a lot more fellers going down there for the first time like me, only they didn't have as much sense as I have got.

We changed the train for another instrument at University Station, which is the only place in the United States where you can buy Coca-Colas for 5c. We had many existing advencheres on the way: one time a poor cow laid down on the track and died and the pilot thought she was asleep and waited six hours for her to wake up. Another time the wind got to blowing too strong and we couldn't make no headway. When we landed it was not at Chapel Hill but at a wild and unsivilized town named Carrboro. Moore showed me the tree where they hung four poor fellers in 1916 for voting the democratic ticket. He showed me the big distillery they have got there disguised as a cotton mill. It shore does hang over the old copper kettle out in the smoke house, Pa.

When I got off the train a big nigger comes up and takes my trunk check away from me and then a tall feller with the rear end of a seigar in his mouth grabs me by the arm and shoves me into one of these new-fangled contraphuns which resembles a Ford but ain't. He musta just took out a life-insurance politic and by golly by the time we reached Chapel Hill I wish I had one too.

I got off at the Y. M. C. A. and thanked the man nicely for bringing me here, it certainly were kind of him. I turned around and started to go in when a feller named Graham, I think he must be the constable or deputy sheriff, grabbed me by the arm and said in a low tense whisper that you could almost hear, 'Carolina men pays the War Taxes'. I give him a quarter and he wanted a quarter more. I give it to him.

It is time to go to bed now. My trunk hasn't come up from the station yet but I am going to spend the night at the house of the Ky Yi fraternity bekawse the boys invited me out there. It is a pretty house with big white pillows holding up the front porch on the main street. There is only one bed empty and a guy named Harry Chase is sleeping in that but they said he wouldn't mind me spending the night with him as it is a big bed.

Well, good-night. I an tres beans, as we say at Carolina. Hoping you have got three too, your intilektewally inlitened offsprung,

So. GREEN.

Here is an interesting specimen of "inspired" literature

CHAPEL HILL
The other day.

Dear Agnes:

Victory! At last I have conquered the table, the vile, treacherous table, the table with the green eyes that has been looking cross-eyed at me. To you, fairest one of all the Russias, belongs the victory. I crown your vision with a wreath of corkscrews! Ah, I remember well the swell little forget-me-nots that you used to season our tea with. I would write to you of love wild and wooly but for the bureau. It is in conspiracy with the night, and is growing longer and longer and always sliding to the left. The pink mice are all right; they run up and down and blend nicely with the wall paper. The pet elephant has turned against me, but I have him locked up in the closet and can't get out. Red is under the bed chasing the squirrels so I thought it would be a fine time to write to you.

In regards to the other people, give them my regards, as for you, keep them. Always beware of Orange county corn, Gertrude, it will betray you when you need a friend most and after it has thrown you it will swear it never did it. I know. I know everything. I have infinite knowledge. I only go to college out of kindness to the professors. I regard them with condescension, for only the great can afford to be foolish. Greatness itself is only nine-tenths publicity and one-tenth insanity. I am great. Napoleon and Joe Person are great men also. I concede it. Only the great can recognize perfect greatness. But I digress. I have been digressing ever since I began.

Will you marry me, Susan, for better or for worse? Say the word and we will build a sweet little igloo up in Eskimo where we can shimmy through life. If not, life is an utter misery to me and nothing is left fo me to do but die fighting for the freedom of the Fiji Islands.

Give my love to the gold-fish,

PERCY TIGHT.

HAW RIVER, N. C.
Wednesday

My Dear Dr. Chase:

I take my pen in hand and sit down to write you a little note just to tell you how much I enjoyed my stay at your University during the past nine months. I want to thank you for your kindness and personal attention which you gave through your professors and Student Council.

You see, I thought you would be interested to know just how much good my education has done for me already. Why Dock, I am the whole cheese around Haw River now. Why men, women, and children all cry for me like they do for corn, cardui, and Peter's castoria, to ask my advice on every kind of subject. They say that since I have got so much education in one year that when I get through your University they are going to make me run for mayor. I have been thinking how you can come down and deliver my inaugural address; but as John Bunyon said, or was it Johnny Booker, "Don't count your chickens before they hatch". You know the Bible says that "all things come to him who will but wait", so if you will but wait long enough, Dock, you may see me mayor some sweet day. Give my love to all the alme martyrs at Carolina, and remember when she needs my help I am ready, waiting to answer her every beck and call.

Most dutifully,

Your devoted student,

SO. GREEN.

Founded by the Rev. Aldert Smedes, D. D., in 1842

For the Education of Girls and Young Women

Eightieth Annual Session Begins September 15, 1921

"The best education is impossible without a foundation of moral teaching which will produce character, and the best education is useless unless directed by strong moral principles toward the best ends for the benefit of society."

"Those things called traditions, which come down from one generation to another, in which each new generation of pupils take a pride, belong to the very soul of the life at St. Mary's School."

What an Alumnus says of the Provident

"I carry insurance in the Provident. . . . An investigation of the Provident convinced me that the Company is managed with unusual care, that its mortality ratio and its cost of management are both low, resulting in a very low net cost to the insurer."

HERMAN CONE, Greensboro, N. C.

What a Professor says of the Provident

"I am greatly pleased with the insurance which I have in the Provident. In my opinion the Company more nearly conforms to the true principles of insurance than any other company with which I am acquainted. I am most agreeably surprised in the amount of dividend at the end of the first policy year."

What Is Research?

SUPPOSE that a stove burns too much coal for the amount of heat that it radiates. The manufacturer hires a man familiar with the principles of combustion and heat radiation to make experiments which will indicate desirable changes in design. The stove selected as the most efficient is the result of research.

Suppose that you want to make a ruby in a factory—not a mere imitation, but a real ruby, indistinguishable by any chemical or physical test from the natural stone. You begin by analyzing rubies chemically and physically. Then you try to make rubies just as nature did, with the same chemicals and under similar conditions. Your rubies are the result of research—research of a different type from that required to improve the stove.

Suppose, as you melted up your chemicals to produce rubies and experimented with high temperatures, you began to wonder how hot the earth must have been millions of years ago when rubies were first crystallized, and what were the forces at play that made this planet what it is. You begin an investigation that leads you far from rubies and causes you to formulate theories to explain how the earth, and, for that matter, how the whole solar system was created. That would be research of a still different type—pioneering into the unknown to satisfy an insatiable curiosity.

Research of all three types is conducted in the Laboratories of the General Electric Company. But it is the third type of research—pioneering into the unknown—that means most, in the long run, even though it is undertaken with no practical benefit in view.

At the present time, for example, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company are exploring matter with X-rays in order to discover not only how the atoms in different substances are arranged but how the atoms themselves are built up. The more you know about a substance, the more you can do with it. Some day this X-ray work will enable scientists to answer more definitely than they can now the question: Why is iron magnetic? And then the electrical industry will take a great step forward, and more real progress will be made in five years than can be made in a century or experimenting with existing electrical apparatus.

You can add wings and stories to an old house. But to build a new house, you must begin with the foundation.

ENTHUSIASM

Enthusiasm is the one factor that has kept the Greentree Organization the youngest in the South. Fired with the full vigor of youthful enthusiasm, we are ever on the alert for those makers who blaze fresh paths to better ideas and ideals.

Our organization is virtually a clearing house for the United States (Europe as well). Here under one roof we gather together those modes, models and materials, which when faultlessly tailored, constitute

GREENTREE CLOTHES

Guided by this youthful enthusiasm, we are tempered by the experience, gained through forty years of catering to a refined clientele.

For the past fifteen years the Educational Department of the Bureau of Engraving, Inc., has been collecting a vast fund of information from the experiences of hundreds of editors and managers of Annuals.

This data covering organization, financing, advertising, construction, selling and original features has been systematically tabulated and forms the subject matter for our series of reference books. These are furnished free to those securing "Bureau" co-operation in the making of engravings for their books.

Begin where others have left off. Profit by their experience and assure success for your Annual.

Beautiful forms and compositions are not made by chance, nor can they ever, in any material, be made at small expense.

A composition for cheapness and not for excellence of workmanship, is the most frequent and certain cause of the rapid decay and entire destruction of arts and manufactures.

—Ruskin

OUR claim to your consideration lies in the fact that we have applied to our own business the thought contained in this quotation from one of the world's greatest thinkers and practical workers.

If there is anything attractive beyond the ordinary, in the page arrangement, cover decoration, presswork, and general harmony which distinguish our work, be assured it has not been due to chance.

We leave nothing to chance. Every line, page, volume, as it comes from our establishment, is the result of a carefully laid, conscientiously executed plan.

The thought and the supervision which our system provides is your guarantee of excellence.

If you have anything to be printed, write us; if we undertake it, we will do it well.
